FOREWORD

We, the staff, present the annual for the year in the hope that it will record pleasant events of 1932. We have chosen the "Gay Nineties" as our theme not only as a contrast to the present but with the realization that for over forty years graduates have recalled happy and inspiring memories of school days at Central.

Good luck to you
Old man
Paul Strane

DEDICATION

The class of 1932 affectionately
dedicates the Cehisean to Miss Wiesenthal,

We appreciate her friendship,
her patience, her sincerity,
and her unfailing interest in our problems.

A sunny spring morning reveals a pleasant picture
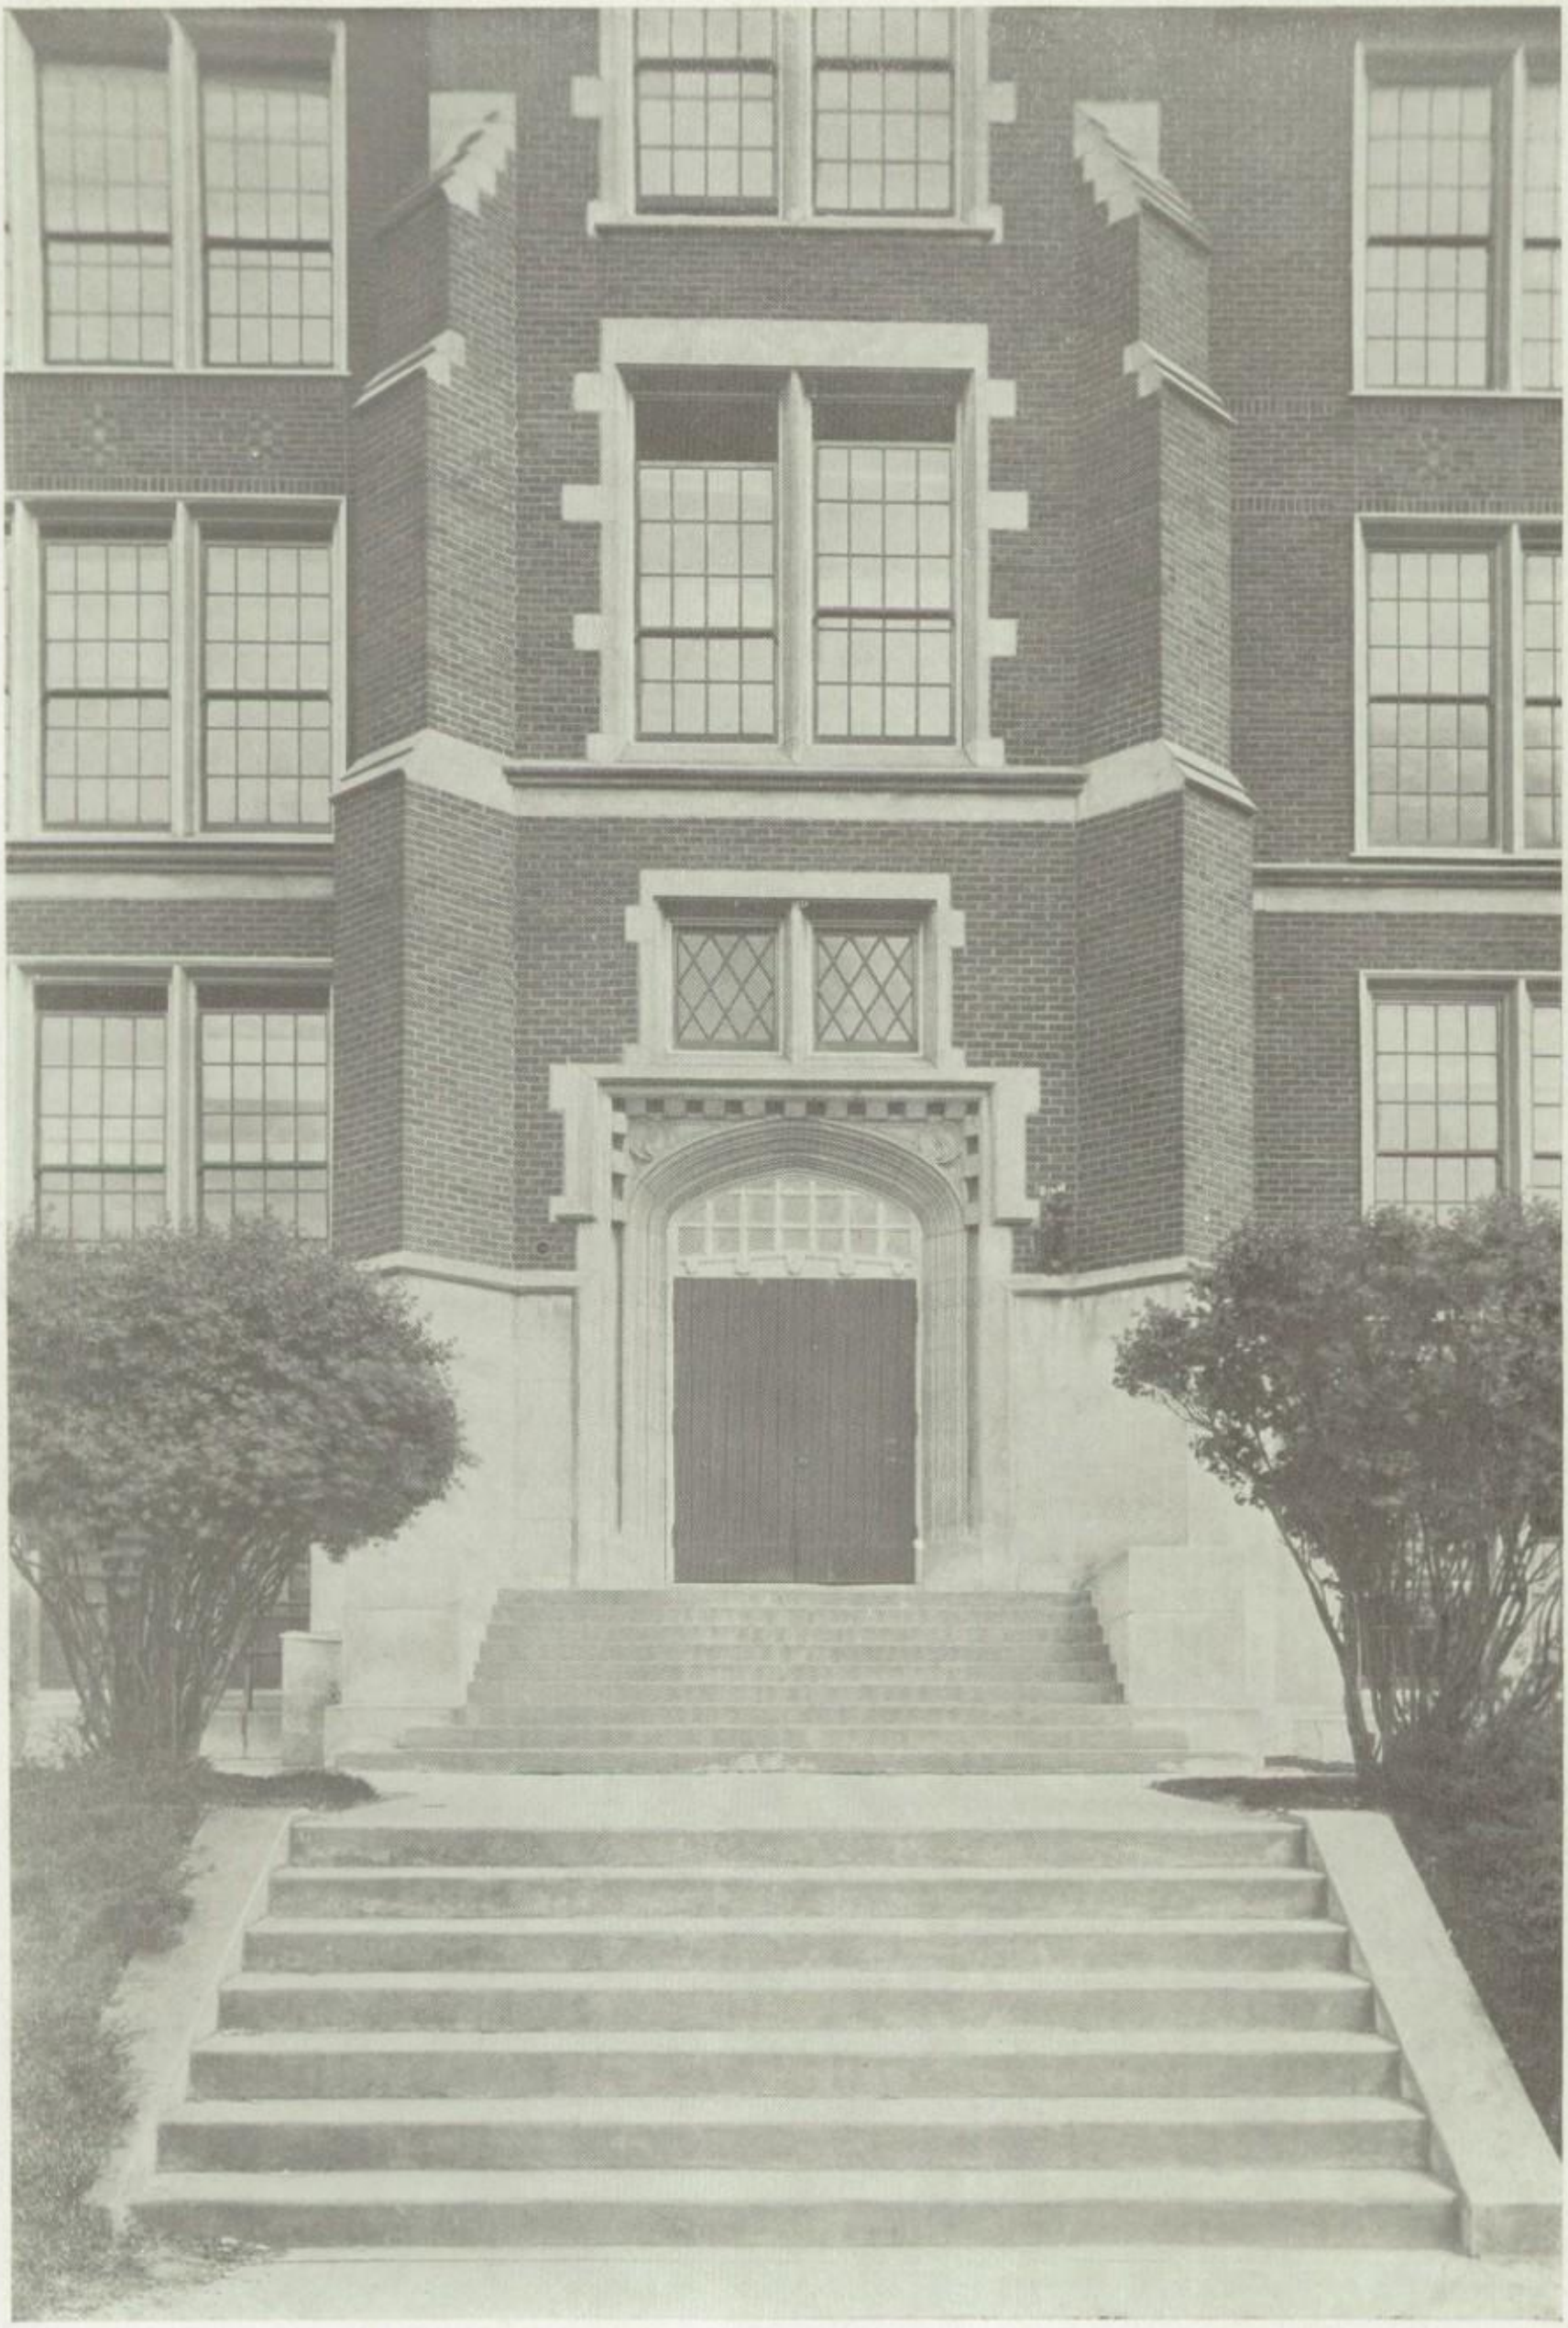
that will linger long in our memories.
Here we will work and laugh,
study and play together.

"CENTRAL"

Each morning
we hurry along the walk
to enter the very heart of Central,
the front hall,
where we may chat for a moment
before the day's activities begin.



"SOUTH ENTRANCE"

"We call her Alma Mater
And if her walls forget us
It matters not. We could Not lose her if we would."

"IN WINTER"

Our imposing situation,
a building of sturdy brick,
and the tower above,
remind us of an old castle.
It is like a castle, too, in enclosing within its walls
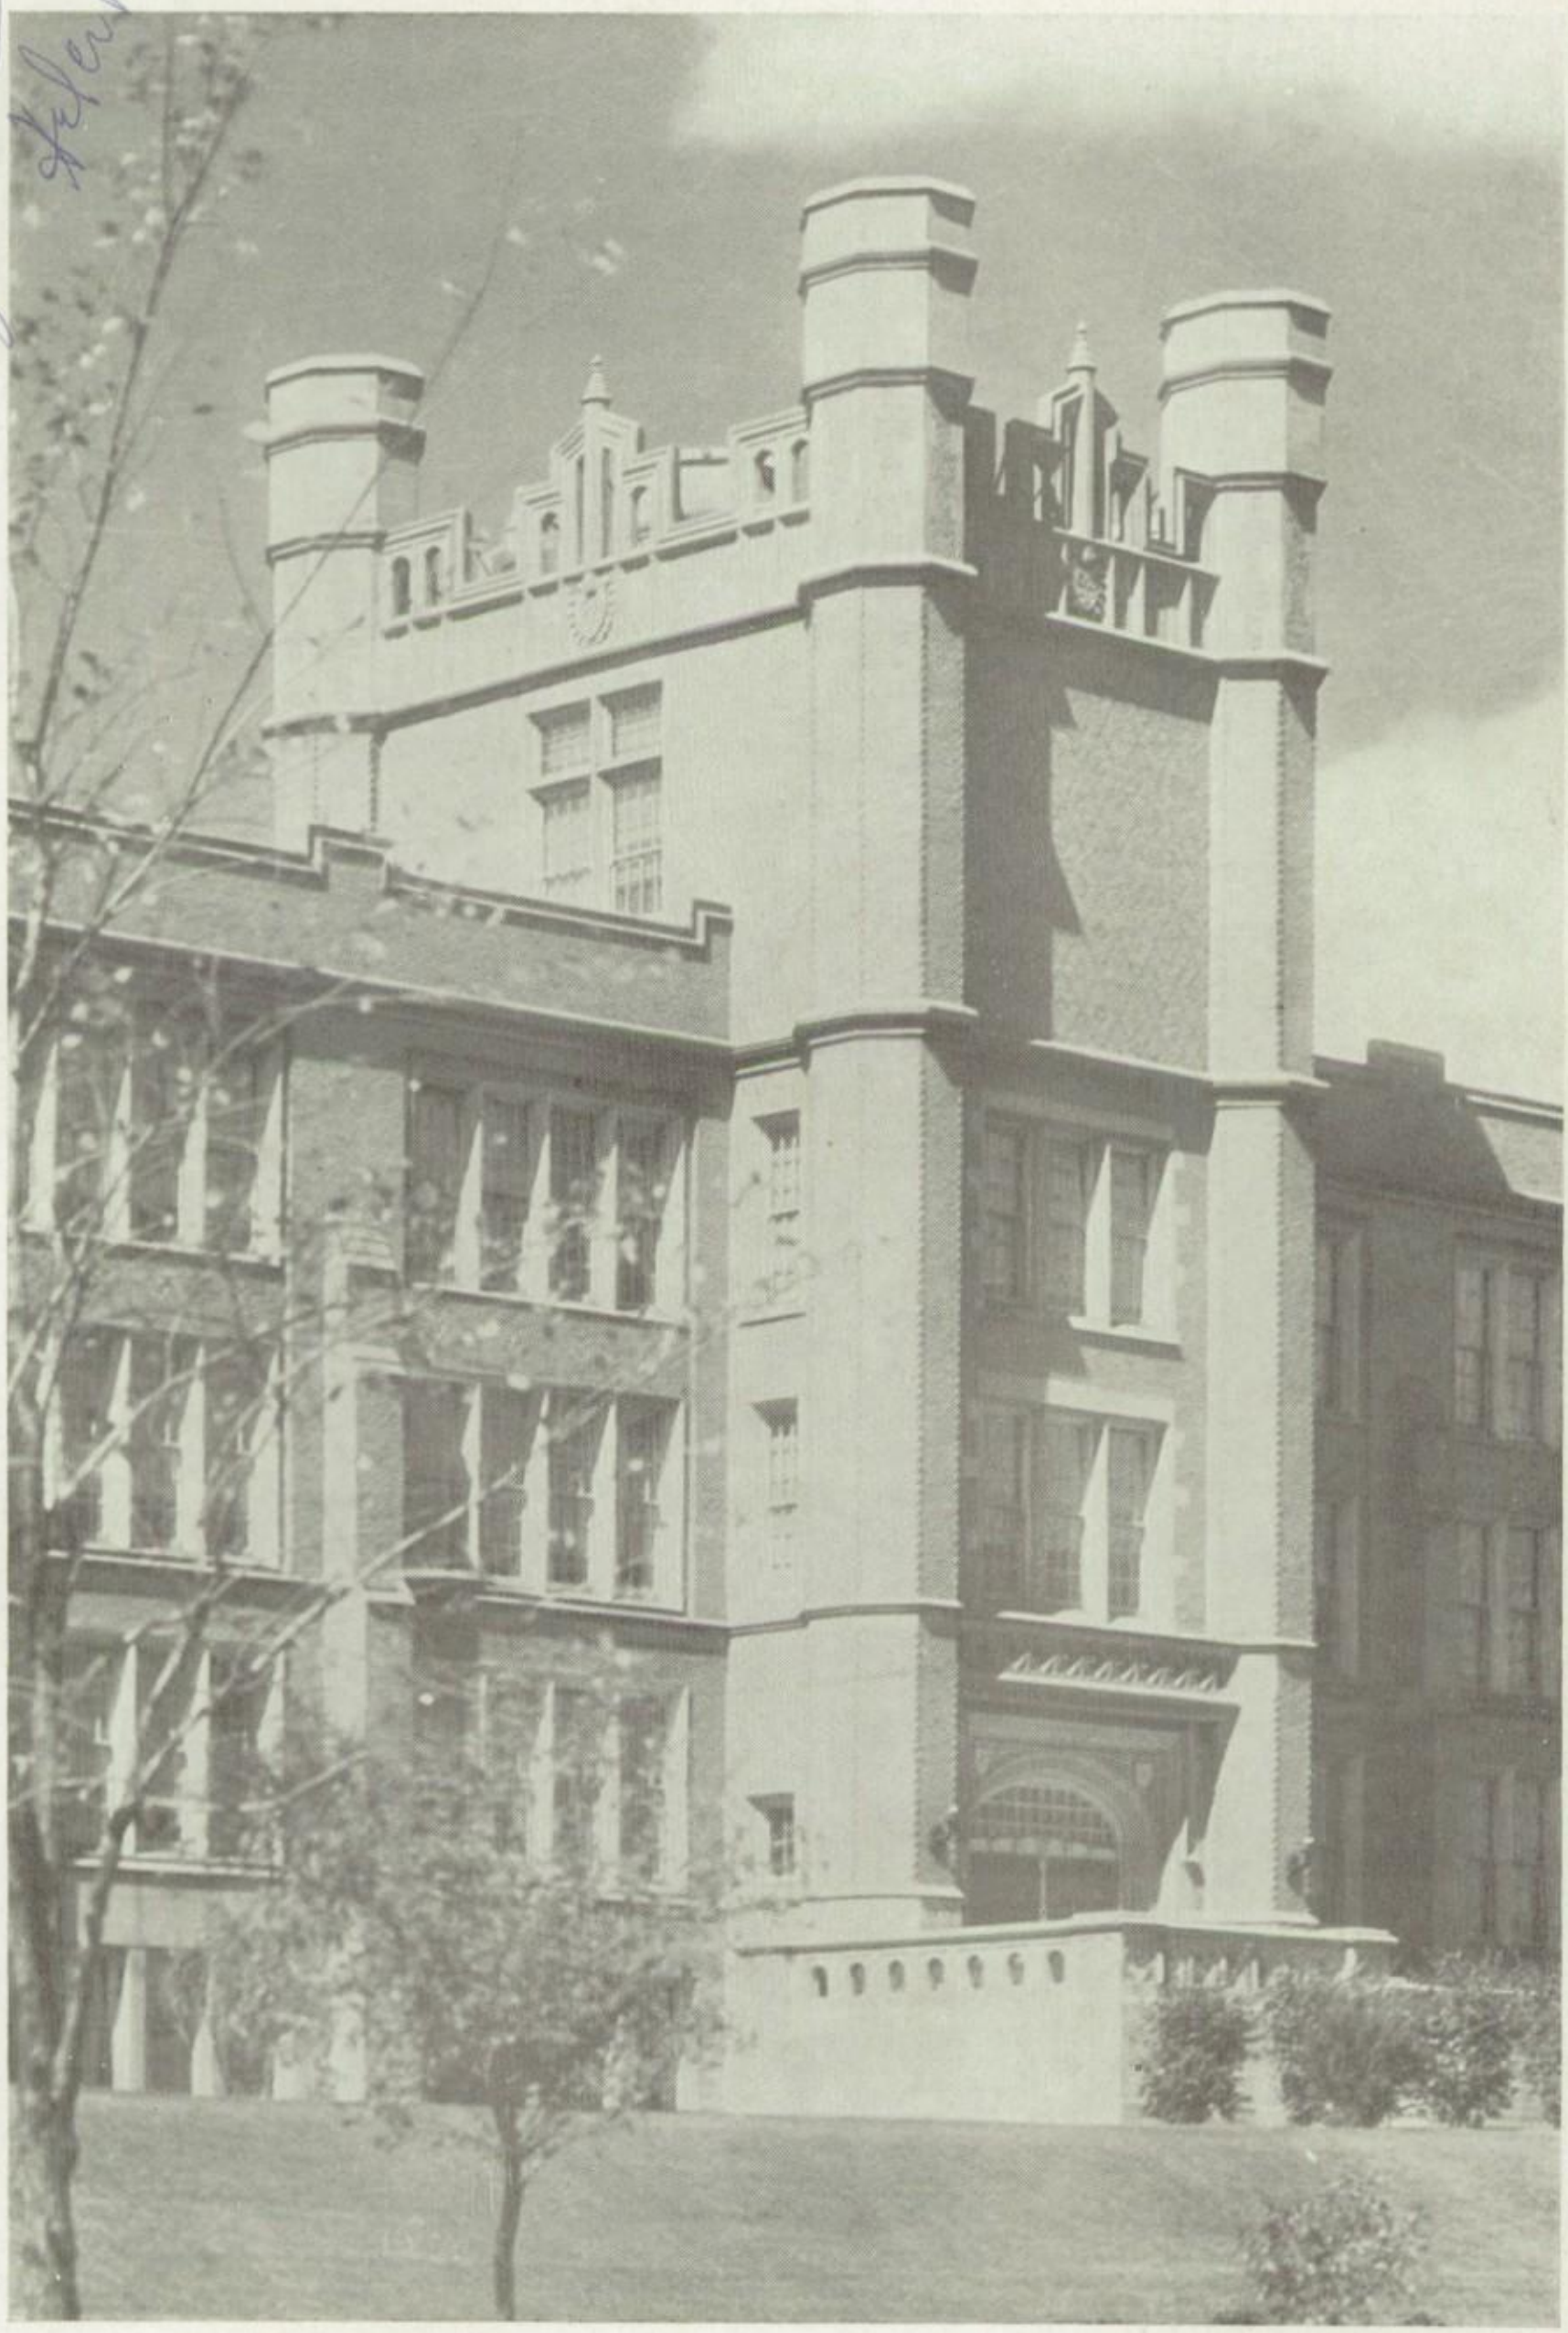
a world of activities.



"CENTRAL TOWERS"

Our school today far surpasses the dreams of the "Gay Nineties."
The faculty is larger, the student body has increased in size, and the activities are more varied.
With a vision of the ideals of scholarship, loyalty, and leadership set by our predecessors, we strive to maintain the standards of Central.

S C H O O L

MR. J. E. MARSHALL
PRINCIPAL

The "Gay Nineties"

ONE IS puzzled to know the real meaning of the above term. Gayety being so much a state of mind, comparisons are hard to make. Is one more or less gay today than he was yesterday? How does this week or month or year match up with previous like periods of time? Are we gay because of some pleasant happening, or because we are not aware of the things, good or bad, which we are missing?

Is the adjective of our title used in earnest or in derision? Should we wish ourselves living again the life of that decade or should we give thanks that the present is so different from it?

Personally, "the good old days" have little appeal. The present with all its difficulties seems to me better in almost every way. True, it has its problems, its terrors, its own peculiar vices; but along with them it has an amazing freedom from smugness and complacency due to the ignorance of those days. It seems to me that we more clearly recognize our present tasks and have therewith a keener desire for their performance now than formerly.

And yet, there was the "Gay Nineties."

MR. A. G. MEIER
ASSISTANT PRINCIPAL

The "Gay Nineties"

IN THE "Gay Nineties" the high school was a very different institution from what it is today. Then most young people left school at the end of the sixth, seventh, or eighth grade and went to work, and many of them were happy to be relieved of the drudgery of school and proud to be earning a definite sum of money each week.

The few that went on to high school or academy had to earn their credits wrestling with English, Latin, history and mathematics, with the addition in some cases of a little science, Greek, German, or French. Such subjects as music and art were not generally offered for credit, and commercial subjects, home economics, and manual training were but slowly receiving recognition as worthy high school subjects.

Today, what a vast change! But we must remember that a great deal can and does happen in a third of a century and that the thirty or forty years directly ahead will probably bring just as great changes as the years since the "Gay Nineties". How important, therefore, that we try to understand and follow as intelligently as possible the present trends in this seething world of ours!

First Row: Gertrude Borden, Mary Bryant, Edith Haigh, Marion Munson, Kate Pearson, Florence Vest.
Second Row: Carrie Castle, Hilda Anderson, Alice Rosenberg, Mary Harmon, Mary Doyle.
Third Row: Inez Lowe, Mable Wicker, Grace Cochran, Dorothy Baumgart, Anna M. Dickson, Olive Allen.

Faculty

IN THE "Gay Nineties" debating, class plays, instruction in the classics, and literary clubs were all considered functions of the English department. These projects are a few of those which show the importance of its activity and the scope of its influence. Its work has been standardized by the minimum requirements, it has published an English handbook for the aid of students, and this year it has sponsored the "World". The chairman is Miss Edith Haigh.

Languages! Latin, French, German, and Spanish afford students unparalleled opportunities in this field. Moreover, these are supplemented with clubs that arouse interest and encourage advancement. Mr. A. G. Meier is the head of the department.

Central of today has a well rounded dramatic arts organization. The large number of students enrolled in expression classes has resulted in increased activity of the Dramatic Club. Besides having a prominent place in the school curriculum, this section presents assemblies and entertainment for various occasions.

First Row: Mary McGough, Minette Paro, Louise Smith, Albert Meier, Florence Baber, Laurie Johnson.
Second Row: Edith Beckman, Daphne Shaull, Grace Bienhoff, Nellie Muller, Emma Ryan, Vivian Cady.
Third Row: Ruth Colberg, Elizabeth Stroble, Julius Kuck, Eunice Welles, William McGovern, Marjorie Dornberg.

Faculty

ANOTHER significant contrast with the past is the growth of the science department. Chemistry classes have long been overcrowded. The greater interest in physics, biology, and physiography has brought the number of students instructed by the science department to well over seven hundred. Actual laboratory experiments increase the powers of perception of the students and enable them to understand the world in which they live. Dr. F. G. Miller is chairman of this department.

In mathematics, too, Central has moved forward. Courses in plane geometry have been systematized to meet the ability of the students. The work in higher algebra has been lengthened to a full year with greater advantages to the student. Studies in solid geometry and trigonometry are based on the requirements of engineering schools. Miss Helen Heck has charge of the department this year.

Shorthand, typewriting, bookkeeping, and business English are the component parts of the commercial department. A complete business course enables most students to qualify for positions upon graduation. The functions of this section are directed by Miss Ellen Simon.

First Row: Frederick Miller, William Bush, Irma Meili, Bret Cooley, Sara O'Hora, Harry Smith, Clarence Eastman.
Second Row: Alfred Buser, Cora Timme, John McCallum, Edith Foulke, John Harp, Lou Ella Miles.

Faculty

THE history department has expanded greatly, for there are now fourteen instructors teaching American, medieval, modern European, English, world, and ancient history, civics, and economics. Miss Edith Foulke is the chairman of this department.

The physical education department has grown also since the first gymnasium director was procured with funds raised by a concert given by a Girls' Choral Society in 1893. The first athletic teams organized were the Baseball Nine and Football Eleven, sponsored by the Boys' Athletic Association. Now all sports are under the direction of trained coaches and instructors.

The library is one of the oldest of Central's institutions. It was organized when Central was under the supervision of the first principal. Later its management was taken over by Miss Newson, a Central graduate, and after her our present registrar, Miss Keane, was librarian.

First Row: Nellie Dunivon, Florence Watson, Franklyn Blume, Edith Beckman, Robert Brockman, Nellie Heyd, Stanley Watson, Ellen Simon, Jennie Wiesenthal.

Second Row: Martha Sjoberg, Martha Hartwell, Gordon Christensen, Helen Hagin, Pearle Knight, Arthur Anderson, Helen Heck, Alice Hosmer.

Others: Claire Boody, Elfie Brodeen, Arthur White, Peter McMillan.

Faculty

THE music department is also an old organization. An orchestra was formed before 1890 and is still very much in evidence. In 1893 a choir was started whose duty it was "to assist in the morning exercises and to put new life into the singing." Since 1902 the place of this organization has been taken by the Glee Clubs.

Another department, manual arts, is made up of five separate sections: shop, turning, forge, mechanical drawing, and cabinet making. Many interesting subjects, such as art woodwork and aeronautics, are taught by this department. These courses are comparatively new and are becoming increasingly popular.

The fine arts section is also a recent project. Thumb Tacks and Triads, two clubs sponsored by this department, design most of our scenery and posters. These scenic designs are executed by the stage force. Commercial art, modeling, illustration, publication, free hand drawing, and design are the divisions of this section.

Advisers

The real test of a free conscience is to bring the skeleton from the closet with a smile. Besides teaching biology Miss Irma Meili assists with the Student Council. Her gracious charm will be remembered by the students.

Tubes, static, and air waves hold no mysteries for Mr. C. W. Eastman to solve. He has conquered those and many more during his reign as adviser for the Radio club.

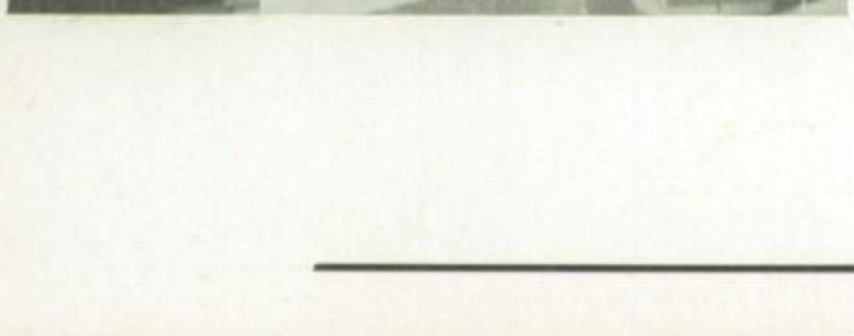
"The decision is three to nothing in favor of Central." These ringing words are often heard by Mr. Stanley Watson, the debate coach. For many years he has successfully instructed Central's teams to victories.

As one would expect, Miss Nellie Muller, adviser of the German Club, enjoys German literature and German opera. She enjoys gardening and bridge and also the luxurious pastime of European travel.

Guiding the path of the National Honor Society is the duty of the able pilot, Miss Grace Cochran. She has her M. A. degree from the University of Wisconsin. She likes to drive a car and loves to cook.

Knowing "Buffalo Bill" as well as the "Forsyte Saga" and playing golf with her son keeps Mrs. Mary Harmon in sympathy with the younger generation and their English difficulties.

Our class adviser, Miss Jennie Wiesenthal, teaches bookkeeping in addition to piloting our destinies. On a balmy spring night one can often see the Wiesenthals driving the Buick on their way to a picnic.



Miss Anna Dickson, known as "Nancy" to her friends, is famous for her smiles, her witticisms, and her varied interests. Her chief ambition is to learn to swim. She is one of the advisers of the Honor Society and belongs to the "C" club.

Advisers

Latin is not dead. A concrete proof of this is the enthusiasm of Latin Club members who are advised by Miss Daphne Schaull and Miss Florence Baber. Miss Schaull enjoys reading and likes to entertain a small nephew.

Stop and go signs hold a great deal of interest for Mr. Arthur Anderson, for he is the power behind the throne in the Central traffic squad. He is business adviser for the "Times" and the "World" as well.

With a few skillful strokes of her brush Miss Elizabeth Stroble creates a pleasing design. She is especially interested in batik, and under her direction, the Triads have designed attractive scarfs.

Miss Florence Baber, adviser for the Latin Club, has produced a great number of plays for programs. That is not her only hobby, however, for she has a garden, which she enjoys greatly.

Travel and books loom high on the horizon of Miss Hilda Anderson. Seminar courses at the University enable her to continue her study of the eighteenth century, in which she is especially interested.

Miss Carrie Castle, that smiling blue-eyed English teacher is the adviser of the Literary Club and has superintended the publication of "The World" this year.

Miss Mary Bryant, our dean of girls, loves out-of-door sports, especially skating. Vacationing at White Bear is her chief delight in summer. We wonder what the sophomores would do without her.

A representative of the history department is Mr. Harry Smith whose avocation is music. He enjoys tennis, and golf, and often goes on long fishing trips. He is a great favorite among the pupils.

Classes

A busy hum and calls for copy are kept up in the "Times" room by our promising young journalists who are expertly directed by Miss Olive Allen.

One of Central's most popular institutions, the library, is efficiently managed by Miss Laurie Johnson and corps of willing girls who work in period shifts.

The peculiar sounds issuing from 212 and 316 have as their source a host of typewriters manipulated under the supervision of Miss Pearle Knight, Vivian Cady, Ellen Simon, Helen Hagin, and Elfie Brodeen.

The chemistry lab. with its variety of odors, its tubes, and the new ventilators is a fascinating place which draws many students. Presiding over it are Mr. Alfred Buser and Mr. William Bush.

The big, small, leering, sober, fantastic, and commonplace masks which grace 319 with their presence are made under the skilled direction of Miss Minette Paro in art classes.

The outdoor gym classes are divided between tennis and kittenball, while many forms of sports and exercise are taught inside by girl referees and Miss Emma Ryan.

Classes

The mourner's bench, one of Central's most attractive retreats, has increased its popularity since the staff photographer recently appeared to snap the pictures of the charter members.

The girls' art woodwork classes are busy making plaques, door stops, book ends, and boxes and other useful wooden objects under the tutelage of Mr. Lewis Harnsberger.

Students of Mr. John Harp's biology classes study under the microscope slides of lower bacterial animal life. Slides are frequently prepared by pupils themselves.

Miss Laura William's modeling classes are popular with both boys and girls. Her pupils usually make bowls, candlesticks, and tea tiles, and some especially talented people model heads or figures.

"This won't balance." "Where is that sheet?" are familiar remarks heard in the bookkeeping classes which are taught by Mr. Robert Brockman, Mr. Arthur Anderson, and Misses Edith Beckman, Nellie Dunivon, and Jennie Wiesenthal.

Several classes under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Stroble are engaged in free hand sketching from models, in making batiks, and in blocking out various designs.

The "Gay Nineties" and Today

In 1893 the World's Fair was held at Chicago. It marked the climax of a century of progress and change.

This year the World's Fair will again be held at Chicago. It will serve as a contrast to the exposition of 1893 and bring back memories of the past.

At that time the automobile was almost unknown, and the bicycle was at the height of its popularity; in fact bicycling was the forte of the class of '95, for they won every race.

The styles of clothing have also changed, and although we again see the puffed and leg-of-mutton sleeves, the sweeping skirts, peacock plumes, and high-boned collars, which are illustrated in the annuals of the nineties, are gone, probably forever.

Back in 1890, Central High School was located at the corner of Tenth and Minnesota, the site of the St. Paul Safety Building. It was a majestic looking old school with many turrets and gables.

That year the graduating class was rather large, numbering sixty-one in all, forty-four girls and seventeen boys. Of these forty-two were blonds, and nineteen were brunettes. Our class numbers 615. We do not know the exact number of blondes and brunettes, but we think that many claim to be blondes.

There were four courses open to the students of Central at that time; the classical, English, general, and commercial courses. Most of the students were enrolled in the general course, while only a few chose the classical course. The English and classical courses have since been combined to form the college preparatory course.

The faculty was made up of twenty-three members as compared with over eighty odd at the present time.

In the nineties, Central had a number of school organizations such as the Debating and Entertainment Society, the Athletic Clubs, the Ornithological Society, the Mandoline, Banjo, and Guitar Club, and the Bicycle Club. In 1896 the Girls' Athletic Association was organized. The club met for two hours every Friday afternoon.

The various clubs and organizations contributed to programs and entertainment, just as now. In 1893, one club gave an operetta, the "Dairy Maid's Supper", and during the same year the boys gave a minstrel show. Every year a Field Day was held.

On Class Day, June 11, 1890, the president of the senior class presented a flag to the class of '93, a pipe to the class of '92, and a knife with the colors of every class since '84 to the class of '91.

The senior class sponsored the annual but called it by various names, among them the "Log Book," the "Negatives," and the "Menu of '96." The staff attempted, then as now, to record the chief events of the year.

Junior-Senior Ball

CENTRAL'S outstanding social event of the year, the Junior-Senior Ball, was held in the school gymnasium on May 20, 1932, in a picturesque setting of a roof garden with the stars twinkling overhead.

The grand march was led by Doris Hagensick and Fredrick Johnson, junior class president. Second in line were Betty Sanders and Frederic Trump, senior class president. They were followed by Louise Ernst and Eion Dando, Everetta Green, and Kenneth Gormin, Mary Brack and Fred Nyquist, Cynthia Chase and Kent Kjelland, Elsie MacManigal and Orville Becklund, Betty Benham and George Bohlig.

An exceptionally fine orchestra, George Kane's, presented by Ben Pollack, furnished music for the evening. During the intermission there was the customary presentation and acceptance of the silver knife by the senior and junior class presidents.

John B. Miller was general chairman of the prom, and a few of his chairmen were Margaret Martin, eligibility committee; Elaine Wentink, refreshment committee; Fred Nyquist, printing committee; Harry George, orchestra committee; Doris Hagensick, distribution committee; Eion Dando, entertainment committee; and Jack Simon and Ann Stoffer, decoration committee.

National Honor Society

Margaret Martin

Randall Stanton

IN 1925 a chapter of the National Honor Society was organized at Central through the action of the students. Its purpose is to act as an incentive to underclassmen as an ideal ultimate attainment. The members are selected by the principal and faculty from the upper third of the senior class on the merits of character, scholarship, leadership, and service while at Central.

To be selected a member of the National Honor Society is the highest honor a student can receive at Central. Each spring an assembly is held at which time a member who has won distinction in his activities gives an address and presents the new members to the school. Other activities are a banquet and the annual business meeting.

The advisers of the society for the past year have been Miss Grace Cochran, Mr. William Bush, Miss Anna Dickson, Miss Jennie Wiesenthal, Miss Hilda Anderson, and Mr. Louis Harnsberger.

Two of the outstanding members of the National Honor Society are our valedictorian, Margaret Martin, and Randall Stanton, salutatorian. Margaret was chosen a member in her junior year and Randall in his senior year. Both pupils have been prominent at Central in class activities and in other clubs.

Class Prophecy

Imagine this in years to come:

FRED JOHNSON leans back in a luxurious swivel chair and directs the activities of a flourishing steel factory.

And vast audiences are stirred to the core by the sublime acting of CHARLES WEEKS.

Connubial bliss wedded to an affluent (and handsome) financial figure has come to BARBARA BOERINGER. Social activities keep her constantly busy.

"And can she dance!" is said of DOROTHY DILLON by patrons who see her star in New York's biggest revue.

But we can't prophecy about LAWRENCE GATES because, you know, the good (?) die young.

A big Metropolitan newspaper delights in having as their talented feminine humorist CATHERINE FOWLER.

See that huge bruiser of a man limping out of the gym with a black eye, and an overly-florid (but non-alcoholic) nose? Well, those are the rather disastrous results of his telling the much-touted instructor in said gym, JOHN NICHOLS, that his ability to "dish 'em out" far exceeded his capacity to "take 'em."

From far away Malay jungles comes news that JACK WICKS, famed sharp-shooting explorer and naturalist, has completed another fruitful expedition.

News reel photographers seethe and swarm about Olympic champion swimmer EDWARD SCHLEH.

Gesticulating benignly from Hollywood with a jade cigarette holder, FRED NYQUIST informs gentlemen of the press that his newest film is to be released in two weeks.

BOB ECKHARDT acts as a tourist gide in the Alps. His penchant for wearing khaki shorts and 10-inch boots frightens even the natives.

A most efficient missionary administering aid to the heathens is ELSIE McMANIGAL.

Coach JACK WALLACE of Notre Dame scratches his bald head reflectively as he dopes out one of his "sneakers" for the team to execute on the morrow.

While wandering into one of the most fashionable modiste shoppes in New York, one notices the name, Mademoiselle PHYLLISS RAABE engraved on the door.

"Now about that new negligee," says EDMUND MOTTERSHEAD to his secretary, "we should sell a lot of that in this sales campaign."

Fate has been extremely beneficent to PHILLIP SOUCHERAY. His appointment to the cabinet is the climax of a swift rise to recognition.

Class Prophecy

Says GORDON KINDY, organist extraordinaire: "I owe my success to learning how to play the organ."

MARY BRACK is an "efficient" private scretary.

The Saints win the pennant with AL ANDERSON pitching and TOM CORBETT outfielding.

MALCOLM POWRIE poses for another collar ad with blasé resignation.

Ecstatic throngs crowd theatres to witness the opening of JUNE LOGAN'S newest picture, "Toast to Youth."

BETTY MEIER patiently struggles with her first grade pupils. She's trying to teach them to read.

Ah me, lack-a-day, HARTLEN KOLB is not president. Fate decreed that he should blossom into a prosperous, but rather grandiloquent, politician.

Marital bonds unite VIRGINIA RANKIN to a well-known poet and author.

Notice that meticulously attired gentleman mingling with all the dignitaries and celebrities. Yes sir, ORVILLE BECKLUND is Washington's best paid society reporter.

CLAIR BECKER induces haunting refrains and pulsating rhythms from his international orchestra.

CHESTER GASKELL, as usual, is a man of changing affections and is consequently still a bachelor.

RUBEN UNOWSKY ekes out a not too precarious living writing sports stories on a Chicago sheet.

JEAN ARNOLD, as professor of languages at Vassar, is a perfect example of one learned in languages foreign to her.

NORMAN MOSKOVITZ keeps the U. S. Senate in harmony, for you can always count on Norman to rise to a point of order.

Smokers slink about furtively lest they be observed by ELAINE WENTINK, president of The Anti-Tobacco League.

GEORGE STEINFELD sends his five children to Central to torment Miss Hagin because she flunked him in typing.

The charms of a young (they all are) aviator captivates DORIS HAGENSICK. Result: matrimony.

CARYL MEYER most capably comforts forlorn orphans in the Meyer Home for the Parentless.

HELEN ROGERS is famous for her startling new food discovery, Roger's Invigorating Dog Biscuit.

Senior Class

THE 1933 class enrolled in Sept., 1929 and was the last freshman class to enter Central. The officers elected for the first term were Jean Kirby, president; Anne Stoffer, vice-president; Ruth Abbott, secretary; Betty Parrish, treasurer; and Justin Hammond, finance committee chairman. We were honored by the appointment of Miss Wiesenthal as our class adviser.

The second term of the freshman year was not very eventful as our class was just getting under way. The same officers were retained in office, Jean Kirby, Anne Stoffer, Ruth Abbott, Betty Parrish, and Justin Hammond. With the help of our efficient and understanding class adviser, we were beginning to gain a good start.

Bob Eckhardt was elected president of the first term sophomore class, and his colleagues were Betty Parrish, vice-president; Jean Kirby, secretary; Jack Simon, treasurer; and Orville Becklund, finance committee chairman. The formation of a file committee started at this time, too. Our class was fully started now, and we were on our way to higher things.

The outstanding event of the second year was the Sophomore Class Party held March 17. Green and white invitations sent to all members of the class symbolized both St. Patrick's Day and the class colors. Officers were Bill Donahower, president; Harry George, vice-president; Barbara Boeringer, secretary; Jean Arnold, treasurer; and Elizabeth Meier, finance committee chairman.

Senior Class

IN THE junior year, we started undertaking the task of collecting class dues for all of the classes. This was our first really big task. The officers elected this first term were Doris Hagensick, president; Katherine Flad, vice-president; Phyllis Raabe, secretary; Orville Becklund, treasurer; and Russell Amundsen, finance committee chairman.

We entertained the seniors at the Junior-Senior Ball the latter part of May. It was the big social event of the season and a successful and enjoyable party. Fred Johnson, president, led the grand march. Other officers were Eion Dando, vice-president; Mary Brack, secretary; Elsie MacManigal, treasurer; and Russell Amundsen, finance commitee chairman.

The senior year was filled with activity and expectation. A publicity committee was organized under the chairmanship of Maxine Sullivan. The officers who started the ball rolling the first term were: George Putnam, president; Doris Hagensick, vice-president; June Logan, secretary; Chester Gaskell, treasurer, and Louise Johnson, finance committee chairman. Discussion was begun about our class gift at this time.

The grand finale, commencement, marked the end of our days at Central. Old memories were recalled as records were compiled of happy times here. Charles Weeks undertook the hard task of presidency the last half of the senior year. The other officers were Doris Hagensick, vice-president; Katherine Flad, secretary; Malcolm Powrie, treasurer; and Bob Eckhardt, finance committee chairman.

Junior Class

THE CLASS of 1934, unlike previous classes to enter Central, started as sophomores. Entering in September, 1931, they soon began their organization when Miss Katherine Sanderson was appointed as their capable class adviser. They were rapidly and efficiently established under her guiding assistance, and the class readily became acquainted with the other students and the school.

In the first semester of the junior year the class was eager for the work that lay before it. They elected as officers: Loane Randall, president; John Hermann, vice-president; Marjorie Monley, secretary; and Jane Loevinger, treasurer. The large task of class dues collection was headed by Pierce Gunderson, chairman of the finance committee.

The second semester brought the juniors the added burden of the Junior-Senior Ball. As officers of their class they chose: Loane Randall, president; John Hermann, vice-president; Florence Munger, secretary; and Pierce Gunderson, treasurer. The chairman of the finance committee was Clark Hook. The work was completed in an efficient and business like manner that was a credit to the juniors.

AMID soft lights and sweet music, the graduating seniors were royally entertained by the juniors at the annual Junior-Senior Ball.

William B. Randall was the general chairman. The decoration committee was: Robert Hanesworth, chairman, Laird Anderson, Dorothy Jo Stoffer, Lorenzo Guindon, Paul Strane, Susan Tallant, Kay Fleming, Robert Haw, and Allen Friedland. The eligibility chairman was Marjorie Monley, assisted by Carol Mitchell, Marion Baker, Mary K. Helmers, Lyla Kellum, Margaret Gorman, Jay Fitch, Margarite Runyon, Judith Berg, and Bertram Rose.

The task of selecting an orchestra was headed by Thomas Valleau, aided by Eleanor Kain, Betty Baldwin, Paul Villaume, and Ted Langford. Edwin De Werff took charge of the distribution committee. His aids were Paula Meyers, Audree Silberman, Paul Bernstein, Anna Bernstein, Rita Henly, Eleanor Olson, and Margaret Pahr. Printing committee members were Russell Hollingsworth, chairman, Merle De Maree, Robert S. Johnson, Donald Garvick, and Robert Putnam. The refreshments were left to Ruth Frey, chairman, Dorothy Eginton, Dorothy Hansen, Geraldine Carlstedt, Jean Abernethy, Celia Kaplan, Marjorie Johnson, Marvelle Vigoren, Seila Elmquist, and Virginia Martin.

THIS term the sophomore class boasts nearly 1100 energetic, enthusiastic, and interested members. The organization of the class was postponed until the second term. Miss Mary L. Bryant organizes every incoming class and then turns it over to an adviser. The class is very happy to have Miss Helen Heck appointed for its adviser this year.

The officers chosen at the first election in March were Allen Raudenbush, president; Ruth Putnam, vice-president; and Harold Ponthan, secretary. Albert Jacobson is the treasurer, and the finance committee consists of Maurice Freeman, chairman, Eleanor Botha, Mary Lou Skipton, Harold Ravits, and Duane Ausman.

The program chairman, Betty Gorham, works with the executive committee to plan the meetings. It is the aim of this committee to give those sophomores who are talented a chance to perform before their own classmates at the meetings. From the zealous beginning, we can all be sure that the class of '35 will make its mark in the history of Central.

Sophomore Honor Medals

SCHOLARSHIP surely does not go unrewarded at Central. Even among sophomores, studious individuals get due recognition. In the spring of 1930 the Student Council originated the custom of awarding in the fall a properly engraved bronze watch charm medal to each sophomore who maintained a straight "A" average during the preceding year.

Those sturdy-minded lower classmen, now juniors, who were worthy of such an honor last fall are Jane Loevinger, and D. Jean Anderson. Proving that the awarding of Sophomore Honor Medals spurs the initiative of students, the three seniors who received sophomore medals, Margaret Martin, Randall Stanton, and Mary Brack, placed first, second, and eighth on the honor roll.

Likewise complimentary to the newly founded system is the fact that Margaret Martin's average of 96.58 is the highest valedictory ever made in Central High School history, while Randall Stanton's average of 96 was equaled only by the valedictorian of the class of 1916.

First Row: Mary Brack, Randall Stanton, Margaret Martin.
Second Row: Jane Loevinger, D. Jean Anderson.

Student Council

CENTRAL SOLONS! In every great democracy there must be a governing body, and the Student Council holds this position at Central. Every semester the enrollment rooms elect representatives. At a meeting of the representatives, the number of new members needed to fill vacancies made by graduation or expiration of term are elected.

This year the Council has given several successful Sunlite Dances that introduced innovations such as tag dances and prize dances. It gave a very interesting and successful Football Banquet, and it donated liberally to various organizations, particularly to the newly formed lip reading class for hard of hearing students. The Traffic Squad and the Bookstore functioned very efficiently.

The officers are: Fred Johnson, president; Philip Souchery, vice-president; Jeanette Baker, secretary; and Bill Donahower, treasurer. The advisers are Miss Pearle Knight, Miss Irma Meili, and Miss Mary Bryant.

Traffic Squad

ORDER is the watch word of our Traffic Squad. The organization was founded in 1925 and has been functioning ever since under the direction of Mr. Arthur Anderson. Duties of the squad have been increased each year by the growth both in the number of pupils enrolled and in the number of students bringing cars to school.

The members volunteer for service, but they must have recommendations from Mr. Meier, from two teachers, and must be approved by Miss Irma Meili, the Student Council adviser of the squad. The chief is usually a Student Council member. This year he is Jack Wicks, and his lieutenants are Winfield Ritter and Max Perlman.

Among the duties of the members are the regulation of parking of cars and the control of traffic in the halls between classes and during lunch periods. This year the squad has tried to relieve unnecessary congestion in the lunchroom.

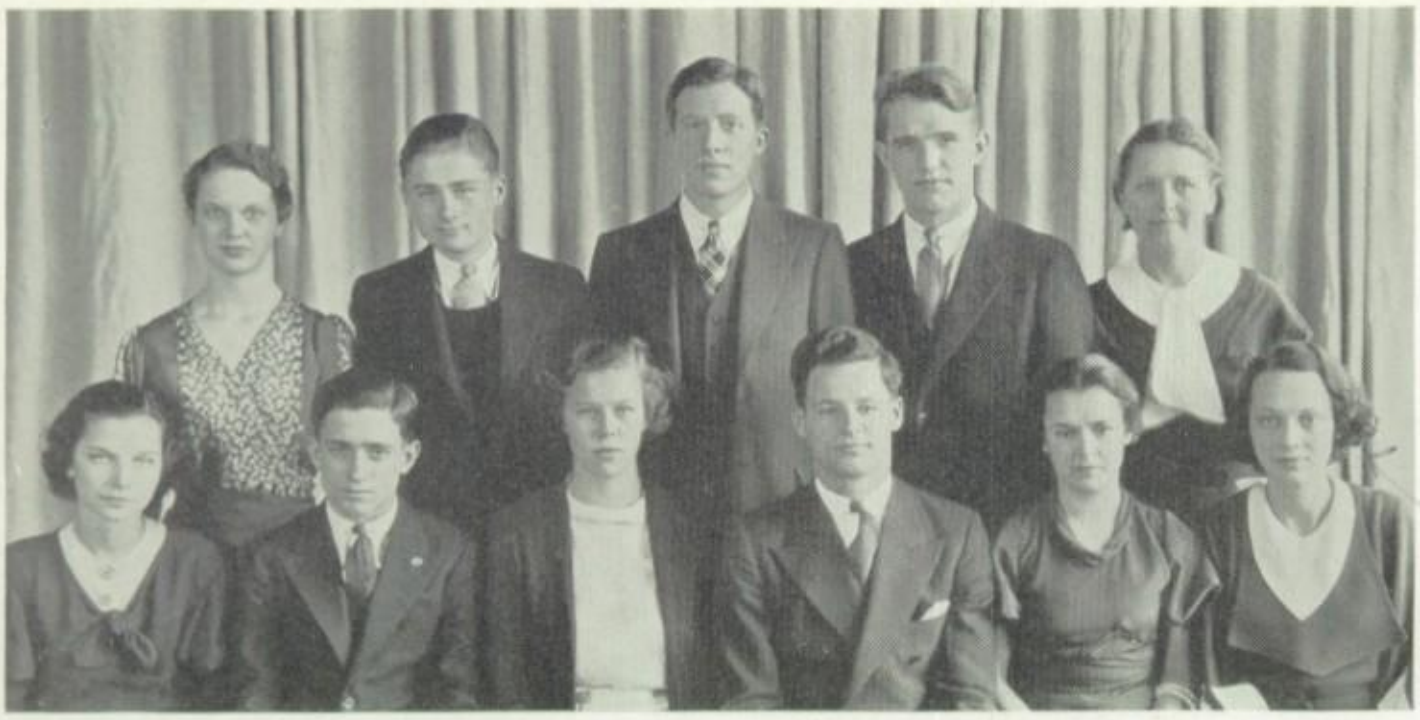
First Row: Winfield Ritter, lieutenant, Miss Meili, adviser, Florence Johnson, Jack Wicks, captain, Mary Hemet, secretary, Mr. A. C. Anderson, adviser, Max E. Perlman, lieutenant, Stanley Zack.

Second Row: Fredrick Pastewka, Richard Holm, Billy McFaden, Burt Horwitz, Robert Rhodes, Simon Frank, Robert Webb.

Third Row: Laird Anderson, Gerald Overby, Robert McMillan, Bob Kellum, Tom Roberts, Leonard Halper.

Fourth Row: William Clink, Clyde Connelly, Ernest Zack, Edmund Mottershead, Don Reichling, Sam Jacobson.

Winfield Ritter '33



First Row: Margarite Runyon, John Sloan, Judith Berg, John Nichols, Harriet Spindler, Mary Jane Mansfield.

Bookstore

BOOKS! School supplies! Right this way! The Bookstore was founded in 1925 to facilitate the exchange of text books. Since then it has expanded, and now it carries notebook paper and other school supplies. It also has charge of the lost and found articles of the school.

During the early part of the term, the Bookstore is open during the entire day, but later it is only open during lunch periods. A small commission is charged for the sale of each book.

The chairman is a member of the Student Council, and this year the position is filled by Judith Berg. She appointed the other members of the committee this year in accordance with custom. Miss Pearle Knight is the adviser. The Bookstore has been of great benefit to the students since it affords an opportunity to sell books no longer needed as well as to buy them economically.

Debating Club

"HONORABLE judge, ladies and gentlemen:—" Opening with these words, Central's debating team presents its construction speech to its opponents. The subject for debate in high schools in Minnesota this year has been: "Resolved: That at least one half of all state and local revenues should be derived from sources other than tangible property."

The members of the affirmative team are Hartlen Kolb, Mary Lund, and Jane Loevinger, and those on the negative team are John Lilygren, Ernest Zack, and Norman Moskovitz.

Carefully planning its rebuttal to meet opposing argument, the debating club, coached by Mr. Stanley Watson, aims to acquire for its members efficiency in debating. Central has been in a four way contest for the district championship in the Minnesota State High School Debating League with North St. Paul, South St. Paul, and Stillwater.

First Row: John Lilygren, Mary Lund, Mr. Watson, adviser, Jane Loevinger.
Second Row: Norman Moskovitz, Ernest Zack, Hartlen Kolb.

First Row: Elsie Billman, Marcia Johnson, Margaret Martin, Florence Munger, Miss Shaull, adviser, Rita Henly, Larry W. Gates, Celia Kaplan, Roger Matters, Miss Baber, adviser, Goldie Kozberg, Albert Heller, Dorothy Jo Stoffer.

Second Row: Nancy Soltan, Harriet Gregory, Maybelle Henderson, Adelaide Jurgensen, Kenneth Enkel, Irma Ellert, Harold Towner, Helen Sommers, Delores Harstead, Anna Bernstein, Charlotte Anderson.

Third Row: Dorothy Brings, Elaine Wentink, George Straka, Doris Hagensick, Robert Saunders, Robert Smith, Grace Katz, Tom Roberts, Katherine Porter, Mary Brack.

Latin Club

"HADES BOUND! We cross the River Styx as we listen to the groans of the three Furies." New members of the Latin Club are being initiated. This is only one of the interesting events of the Latin Club program. On the first of March a New Year's banquet was held as March first was the New Year's Day on the old Roman calendar. An outdoor festival was celebrated in May.

To further interest in the Latin language and to give a broader view of the culture and civilization of the Romans is the purpose of the Latin Club. To be eligible for membership one must have two credits in the classic language, have a "C" average in Latin, and be taking Latin as one of his subjects.

Lawrence Gates is the president; Celia Kaplan, vice president; Rita Henly, secretary; and Roger Matters, treasurer. Miss Florence Baber and Miss Daphne Shaull are advisers.

German Club

"GUTEN TAG!" If on the second Thursday of any month one happened into room 301 during a German Club meeting, it would be hard to convince him that he was not in Germany, for he would see German skits being presented, hear popular German songs sung, or enjoy an authoritative speech on a subject of interest.

This year the club had an open meeting early in spring. The program consisted of plays given at other meetings, poems, and musical selections. Most of the club members participated to make the event a success. German Club members remember 1932 and 1933 socially by a fall pow-wow that ended in a rain shower, a Christmas party from which members came overstuffed, and a May picnic.

The club is under the direction of Miss Nellie Muller. The officers are: Jack Simon, president; Elsie Billman, vice-president; Elizabeth Meier, secretary, and Jane Loevinger, treasurer. "Auf Wiedersehen."

First Row: Bette Jahnke, Mildred King, Jean Anderson, Niel Wreidt, Elizabeth Meier, Jack Simon, Jane Loevinger, Elsie Billman, Miss Muller, adviser, Alvin Angerhofer, Charlotte Hoffman.

Second Row: Marguerite Jones, Katherine Flad, Marjory Harris, Caroline Justus, Margaret Lind, Dorothy Bertram, Helene Borcherding, Marion Johnson, Esther Cohen, Virginia Krahmer, Rose Cohen.

Third Row: Lois Sharpless, Elizabeth Jackson, Doris Hagensick, Phil Clark, Margarete Wahlers, Henrietta Wahlers, George Holm, Betty Tucker, Elaine Wentink, Frances Bendixen.

Fourth Row: Natalie Krauch, Walter Homa, Ellen Angerhofer, Hartlen Kolb, Robert Hillard, Lyman Cummings, Wava Holm, Edwin DeWerff, Ruth Wilhelm, Gertrude Dobbertuhn.

First Row: Virginia Martin, Marie Fredstrom, Milton Wicklow, Mildred Stier, Gordon Axelson, Verna Lindberg, June Kuel, Eleanor Kain, Elizabeth Frost, Sophie Gordon.

Third Row: Joan Zaun, Dorothy Young, Eunice Brink, Marjorie Diehl, Mary Grady, Virginia Welke, Dorothy Erhard.

Spanish Club

"BUENOS DIAS!" To keep up its standard as an exceedingly active organization and to become familiar with Spain, her people, and her customs is the aim of the Spanish Club.

At each meeting an interesting program is held concerning this gay and sunny land, and each one has met with the hearty approval of the members and visitors. One of the main feats of last semester was an inter-school banquet with the Spanish Club of Mechanic Arts High School held at the Granada Supper Club. An executive board elected by the members plans the year's schedule with the aid of the adviser, Miss Katherine Sanderson. A colorful Spanish fiesta is promising to be a very unique and entertaining problem. A play and a spring outing are being planned, and splendid results are anticipated.

The officers are: Mildred Stier, president; Helen Barker, vice-president; Verna Lindberg, secretary; and Milton Wicklow, treasurer.

Chess Club

CRIES of "checkmate" ring out at intervals sounding the knell of another aspirant to the chess team. The chess club, one of the social organizations of Central, was founded by Mr. A. M. Brockman.

Mr. Brockman, the adviser, has been an active member of the Minnesota State Chess Association for many years, and it is through him that the members are instructed in the fine points of chess. Tournaments are held each year between members of the club for the purpose of selecting a team. This year a representative has been sent to the Minnesota State Chess Association's tournament. Each day at the close of sixth period the members of the club may gather to play or to discuss the game.

The officers for the past semester have been: Eugene Muller, president; Don Aubrecht, vice-president; and Herman Gordon, secretary-treasurer. Edward Miller is the representative in the state tournament.

Third Row: Helen Carkin, Robert Kjelland, Billie Love, David Salstrom.

Triads

CHRISTMAS cards! Gift paper! Central's needs in these articles have been amply met by the Triads during the past years. Each holiday season this club chooses a Christmas problem, and since the gayly colored wrapping paper had been their previous project, they chose to make greeting cards this year. The cards were designed and cut out on linoleum block and printed in either green, red, or black. The sale of the cards proved very worth while.

The work done by Triads under the supervision of Miss Elizabeth Stroble testifies as to each member's talent. The artistic illustrations in the "World" were made by this group. Beautifully painted nut dishes were designed in all colors as gifts or dinner favors.

The officers are: Jane Randall, president; Ned Campbell, vice-president; Dolores Ritter, secretary; Keith Newhouse, treasurer.

Thumb Tacks

FROM the canvas under the skillful strokes of the twelve Thumb Tacks emerge the wilds of "Crocodile Island." The six boys and six girls selected by the club's adviser, Miss Minette Paro, to compose the membership have borne the responsibility of designing and painting the scenery for the Glee Club's production.

The Thumb Tacks have shown themselves to be one of our most active, reliable, and original organizations. Most of the posters for the various clubs have been made by members of this art group. One of the most interesting problems and ambitions of the pupils to be attempted this semester is oil painting. Perhaps the most anticipated social function of the year is the annual picnic at Lake St. Croix.

The newly elected officers are: Ned Campbell, president or big tack; Betty Erickson, secretary and treasurer or penholder and keeper of the tacks; and Robert LeBlond, palette tickler.

First Row: Sidney Goldberg, Phyllis Feeley, Robert LeBlond, Betty Erickson, Ned Campbell, Harriet Noltimier, Don Youngstrom.
Second Row: Anne Stoffer, Miss Paro, adviser, Roy Diethorn, Billie Love, Betty Doyle.

First Row: Betty Landgren (2), Adele Garrison (2), Sara Schwartz (1), Mildred Stier (3), Ethel McGeehan (2), Sara Rosenberg (2), Sylvia Moskovitz (3), Celia Kaplan (3), Pearl Monge (4), Miss Johnson, adviser, Elizabeth Frost (1), Shirley Dimond (1), Lorraine Nelsen (2), Audrey Nystrom (2).

Second Row: Phoebe Norton (1), Virginia Martin (2), Marie Vollegraaf (1), Elizabeth Lang (1), Bonnie Jane Berger (3), Marian Chapman (3), Betty Jane Hills (2), Dorothy Jean Anderson (1), Virginia Krahmer (4), Noreen Cooper (2), Elisabeth Seekins (2), Patricia Cooper (1), Helen Mules (2).

Third Row: Charlotte Hoffman (5), Ruth Lussan (2), Barbara Watson (3), Lois Blankenbuhler (5), Virginia Werner (5), Peggy Wilson (2), Helene Borcherding (4), Angeline Goldberg (3), Doris Huelster (3), Dorothy M. Moran (1), Dorothy Norton (2), Ethel Rovitzky (2), Eileen Leonard (2).

Fourth Row: Jane Mordaunt (1), Jennie Blazic (1), Dorothy Kipp (2), Arline Menk (3), Catherine Fowler (3), Elizabeth Nelsen (2), Jane Frisbie (1), Marjorie Veruss (4), Phylis Brings (4), Dorothy M. Johnson (3), Ramona Carey (2), Louise Johnson (3), Betty Blackmun (2), Grace Peterson (1).

Tri-Sigma

"PLEASE let me have a 'Mill on the Floss'." "Could you give me a black 'Beard'?" These are samples of some of the fantastic requests the girls of the Tri-Sigma have to fill. We appreciate this staff of librarians for its patient and untiring service.

Tri-Sigma is now a social organization of girls who have worked in the library for one semester. Two meetings, the June picnic and the Christmas party, are held each year. The name, Tri-Sigma, denotes service, sincerity, and self-improvement. Each of these students has devoted one period or more a day for at least one term to working in the library and has kept up her scholarship. Among the fifty-two seniors who have been assistants, thirty-five are in the upper third of their class.

The present officers are: Sylvia Moskovitz, president; Celia Kaplan, vice-president; Sara Rosenberg, treasurer, Miss Laurie Johnson is the adviser.

Astrolabe Society

IMAGINE studying an object millions of miles away in the unfathomable heavens through that wonderful instrument of science, the telescope! A group of Centralites experienced this thrilling sensation during one of their excursions. These fortunate persons were the members of the Astrolabe Society who recently visited Carleton College at Northfield, Minnesota.

The Astrolabe Society was re-organized last year under the guidance of Mr. C. W. Eastman for students interested in the study of stars and the planets. The purpose of the club is to study semi-technical astronomy and methods employed by scientists. Meetings are held twice a month.

Officers for the first semester were: Ernest Zack, president; Russell Amundson, vice-president; Gordon Axelson, secretary; and Maybelle Henderson, treasurer. During the present semester Earl Kverno is president; Paul Earle, vice-president; Gordon Axelson, secretary; and Margaret Martin, treasurer.

Second Row: Lillian McGrail, Joan Zaun, Barbara Watson, Adelaide Jurgensen, Maurice Goldman, Kathryn Francis, Elizabeth Lang, Harold Dinesen, Georgia DeWolfe, Marian Hendricks, Anne McCarthy, Martha Stewart, Marion Johnson.

Third Row: Clara Mildenberg, Katherine Doherty, Lois Blankenbuhler, Arline Menk, Romona Cary, Frances Bendixen, Ronald L. Cook, Catherine Francis, Beulah Gillespie, Dorothy Young, Leona Scheunemann, Catherine Fowler.

Fourth Row: Lois Christensen, Margaret Meacham, Maybelle Henderson, Ellen Angerhofer, Marian Palmer, Larry W. Gates, Jack Burnham, Marian Bruss, Elizabeth Running, Betty Seibert, Helen Effinger.

First Row: Tom Poore, Harriet Niebergall, Jack Wicks, Goodwin Luck, Robert Vigeant, Mr. Bush, adviser, Jack Neander.

Second Row: Arthur Crawford, George Holm, Elaine Wentink, Fred Nyquist, Geneva Rave, Art Giertsen, Bernard Pusin.

Third Row: Marrill Marston, Ray Anderson, Sidney Bumgardner, Jack Blomstrand, Robert Brasted, John Swenson, Henry Benson.

Rifle Club

CRACK! As the final round of ammunition is fired, the gunners go forward into the acrid fumes to recover their targets. A quick check-up follows. One of the members shouts his triumph as he finishes tabulating his score. The tension of the group is broken, and the members of Central's Rifle Club enjoy a brief period of relaxation.

The club is a member of the "C" division of the National Rifle Association. It is leading this division so far this year. It has already won four championship cups. Tournaments are held bi-weekly to establish the ranking of the members. There are five classes, pro-marksman, marksman, sharpshooter, expert marksman, and distinguished marksman.

The club boasts three expert marksmen. They are Jack Wicks, Jack Blomstrand, and Goodwin Luck. The officers for this year are: Goodwin Luck, president; Jack Wicks, vice-president; and Robert Vigeant, secretary-treasurer; and the adviser is Mr. W. Bush.

Radio Club

"CRACKLE! Snap!" Yes, but they do tell us that they can distinguish something else too in those headphones! The Radio Club under Mr. C. W. Eastman's able and experienced guidance is active both as a social and scientific organization.

The science section in charge of Arthur Tiedman is set aside for those particularly interested in scientific research and radio. This group has accomplished a great deal, including the construction of a long distance short wave set from which they have received communication from various foreign places such as Rome, Mexico, London, and the Olympic Liner. This year's project is to be either a short wave transmitter or the completion of work on a television set. The social section in charge of Betty Seibert is also interested in radio and science.

The other officers are: Paul Thuet, president; Norman Foote, chief operator; Jane Works, secretary; Gale Libby, treasurer; and James Kimball, notices.

First Row: Helen Flynn, Margaret Redpath, Betty Seibert, Jane Works, Murillo Peaker, Hugo Munro.
Second Row: Harriet Fritz, Margaret Meacham, Don Raudenbush, Eileen Duffy, Ted Osterholdt.
Third Row: Erling Larson, Arthur Tiedman, Earl Kverno, Norman Foote.

First Row: Jean Herschler, Louise Michelet, Helen Dreis, Marcia Cammack, Betty Berry, Elisabeth Seekins.
Second Row: Elizabeth Spindler, Bonnie Jane Berger, Kenneth Buchelt, Jeanette Baker, Jean Kirby.
Third Row: Mary Lund, Frances Bendixen, Marjorie Miller, Paul Strane, Virginia McMillan, Betty Blackmun.

Paint and Patches

FIERCE villains with curling moustaches, tramps, youths, character parts, nationalities, and many other types are magically created from ordinary looking people by means of grease paint, powder, rouge, lipstick, eye pencils and shadow, false wigs, beards and eyebrows in the deft hands of the members of Paint and Patches. To study the art of stage makeup is the chief purpose of this organization.

At the meetings of the club the members practice what they have learned by making each other up in these various guises. For plays, pageants, cantatas, operettas, and other special occasions, they show their skill by making up personages of the cast. Much of the success of the play depends on the makeup of the characters.

Miss Marjorie Dornberg is the adviser. The officers of the club for this year were: Marcia Cammack, president; Ben Williams, vice-president; Helen Dreis, secretary; and Betty Berry, treasurer.

Stage Force

"STRIKE THE SCENE!" Then the Stage Force acts its part, but these duties are performed behind a closed curtain. This group of boys is the foundation of all dramatic presentations and assemblies of Central. Under the guidance of Miss Helen Austin, their adviser, the members are trained in the back stage operations and have functioned very efficiently.

During the past year the Stage Force has built sets for the operetta, equipped Miss Austin's room with a stage, hung new drapes, and has maintained the lighting equipment and sets. A co-organization of the stage force is the wardrobe committee which is composed of a group of girls who have charge of all stage properties and the property room.

Lawrence Gates and Paul Earle are the managers of the stage force this year. Russell Hollingsworth, assistant manager, and George McDougall, electrician, complete the executive staff. Virginia Kennedy is chairman of the wardrobe committee.

First Row: Norman Moskovitz, Russell Marsh, Paul Earle, Larry W. Gates, George McDougall, Russ Hollingsworth.
Second Row: Maurice Goldman, June Edson, Norma Leonard, Virginia Kennedy, Marsh Perkins.
Third Row: Eric Jorgensen, Warren Stockwell, Bob Saunder, Bob Kellum, Warren Olson.

Second Row: Audrey Nystrom, Betty Giertsen, Dorothy Lovgren, Jeanne White, Marion Rosness, Yvonne LeMarquant, Zita Hermes, Mary Short, Carol Manchester, Mary Brack, Harriet Gregory, Harriet Niebergall, Audrey Cooper.

Third Row: Clara Mildenberg, Phoebe Norton, Alice McCarr, June Roe, Elaine Wentink, Gayle Christensen, Maybel Peterson, Marion Dedon, Verna Lindberg, Ruth Pennell, Mary Lambert, June Gray, Ann Levick.

Fourth Row: Elsie McManigal. Bernice Nutzmann, Myrra Short, Phyllis Christensen, Dorothy Mueller, Gertrude Monley, Marie Fredstrom, Helen Schroeder, Marguerite Lane, Irene Pomranke, Edith Plankers, Eleanor Hall, Ruth Peterson, Rose Herskovitz, Virginia Kraham.

Girl Reserves

"SLAP! BANG! Here we are again!" Another Central Girl Reserve meeting is in full swing. A speaker on beauty may be featured or a chalk talk by Mr. Hoffstrom or a skit acted by club members, but whatever the form of entertainment may be, it is always received in the same enthusiastic manner.

Central Girl Reserves also perform their services with other similar clubs of the city under the direction of Mrs. Ralph Bradshaw, the city wide Girl Reserve secretary. At Thanksgiving they furnished the fruit for several baskets. During the Christmas holidays Girl Reserve carollers brought cheer to many people confined to institutions, and toys donated at this time brought pleasure to many children.

All Central girls may try out for membership in this school's club by answering a questionnaire. Miss Elfie Brodeen is the adviser. Officers are: Bonnie Jane Berger, president; Elizabeth Pahr, vice-president; Elisabeth Seekins, secretary; and Dorothy Norton, treasurer.

Girl Reserves

"COME ON, you Y girls!" This invitation is one of the surest ways to get a peppy crowd of Girl Reserves together. From every high school in St. Paul they come to enjoy a "Back to the Farm" party, a Christmas celebration, or a Washington's Birthday party and always with the ever present Girl Reserve spirit of friendliness, service, honesty, loyalty, and readiness.

Girl Reserve activities do not confine themselves to meetings or even to Central High School because the girls are junior members of the Y.W.C.A. and do their service through the Y. Neither do Girl Reserve activities end with the school year.

Both Camp Okaboji at Milford, Iowa, and Grace Dodge Camp at Lake Elmo, Minnesota, lure many girls who like swimming, riding, tennis, canoeing, and campfires every summer. In fact when school closes in June, the Girl Reserve's password becomes, "See you at camp!"

Fourth Row: Helen Harrison, Eleanor Olson, Arline Menk, Elizabeth Nelson, Eleanor Bergstedt, Bernadine Brown, Iva Jones, Jane Frisbie, Isabel Gullifer, Helen Effinger, Elizabeth Erickson, Jennie Blazic, Mary Blazic.

First Row: Helen Gerry. Anne Stoffer, Helen Thorsen, Caryl Meyer, Mary Short, Miss Castle, adviser, Patsy Joan Grady.

Second Row: June Kvarnes, Ruth Ann Wallace, Jane Loevinger, Marjorie Anne Johnson, Betty Jane Schmidt, Jean Burgess, Esther Cohen, Barbara Boeringer.

Third Row: Maybelle Henderson, Loren Maguire, Dorothy Kipp, Robert Smith, Alice K. Nolan, Betty Blackmun, Catharine Fowler.

Fourth Row: Margaret Boerner, Phyllis Brings, Betty Erickson, Don McDermott, Audree Silberman, Marguerite Mayer, Mary Lou Vincent.

Literary Club

STUDENTS, our prospective authors! To encourage creative writing and promote interest in good reading is the purpose of the Literary Club, organized in September, 1930, with Miss Carrie Castle as adviser. Membership is limited to thirty, who are chosen from those taking part in the tryouts held each fall.

The club's activities include a series of monthly meetings, the most interesting this year being the one at which Mr. LeRoy MacLeod, a Saint Paul author, talked on the art of writing and read selections from his own poetry. The major project for the year has been the publication of the "World", the magazine representing the literary and artistic work of Central students.

Officers for the current semester are: Caryl Meyer, president; Donald McDermott, vice-president; and Mary Short, secretary-treasurer; while the editor-in-chief and associate editor of the "World" are Helen Thorsen and Anne Stoffer.

Girls' League

TURTLE RACES, fortune tellers, a fish pond, popcorn balls, doughnuts, and cider enlivened the carnival that was the highlight of the meetings of the Girls' League during the past year.

The Girls' League, an organization open to all girls at Central, was begun in 1926 to promote cooperation among the girls of the school in every type of service with the endeavor to try to develop the finest characters and the highest ideals. Among the many activities of the Girls' League are the Christmas Seal sale and the Big Sister work to aid new girls at Central. The special project this year was the drive for toys to be used by the Santa Claus Club for needy children.

The officers are: Elsie MacManigal, president; Jean Kirby, vice-president; Mary Short, secretary; and Jean Arnold, treasurer. Miss Mary Bryant, Miss Mary Doyle, and Miss Dorothy Baumgart are the advisers.

First Row: Ruth Brabham, Jean Arnold, Elsie McManigal, Jean Kirby, Mary Short, Miss Bryant, adviser.
Second Row: Roberta Otis, Nathalie Bernstein. Katherine Flad, Lenore McGinnis, Virginia Hedge.
Third Row: Elaine Wentink, Doris Hagensick, Norma Leonard, Dorothy Meacham, Sylvia Smolik, Mary Brack.

Second Row: Roger Matters, Katherine King, Mary Short, Warren Stockwell, Murillo Peaker, Hartlen Kolb, Catherine Francis, Fred Nyquist, Cecile Ryden, Jeanne Kimball, Katherine Flad.

Third Row: Ruth Tilton, John Lilygren, Josephine Wald, Phyllis Feely, Helen Rogers, George McDougall, Clara Bohlig, Betty Tucker, Gordon Axelson, Lois Shambless.

Dramatic Club

MILES STANDISH and other Puritan characters were portrayed on the stage by the Dramatic Club in an interesting play, "The Rose of Plymouth Town," for the Thanksgiving assembly. A one act play, "Bones," written and directed by Miss Helen Austin, was presented by an able cast at the "C" Club banquet and at an assembly. Several skits, a few written and directed by club members, were given at meetings during the year.

Under the instruction of its adviser and founder, Miss Helen Austin, Dramatic Club members discuss problems of directing, acting, play production, and staging. The chief aims of the organization are to develop talent and initiative and to provide entertainment for assemblies and monthly meetings of the club.

The officers of the first term were: Philip Soucheray, president; Charles Weeks, vice-president; and Virginia Rankin, secretary. Those elected for the second term were Paul Villaume, president; and Katherine Willigan, secretary.

Historical Society

POP! More balloons broken by able dart throwers! These noises and other merry sounds mingled with the laughter at a carnival that featured fortune telling and fish pond. The members of the Historical Society were enjoying their chief social event of the year.

This society, which was organized in 1900 by Miss Mary Jane Newson, a former teacher at Central, consists of sixty students chosen by the faculty on the basis of scholarship. These members are required to maintain a "B" average. Records of alumni from 1870 to 1932, files of the "World" and the "Times," and scrapbooks of all club activities are maintained.

The officers of the Historical Society are: Burnell Carlin, president; Jay Fitch, vice-president; Katherine Flad, corresponding secretary; Mildred Chernov, recording secretary; Helen Meyers, executive secretary; Randall Stanton, Fred Nyquist, Ruth Wolfgram, finance committee. The advisers are Miss Claire Boody and Miss Ellen Simon.

First Row: Eleanor Hennessy. Ruth Wolfgram, Jean Anderson, Mildred Chernov, Katherine Flad, Burnell Carlin, Helen Meyer, Miss Simon, adviser, Roger Matters, Mary Brack, Celia Kaplan, Anne Stoffer.

Third Row: Maybelle Henderson, Recelle Goffstein, Jerome Grodin, Lyla Kellum, Robert Saunders, Phyllis Feeley, Randall Stanton, Elizabeth Erickson, Gladys Saxrud.

Fourth Row: Eugene Muller, Fred Nyquist, Marion Palmer, Clark Hook, Carl Anderson, Orville Becklund, Georgia Hartwell, Don Aubrecht, Tom Roberts.

First Row: Loane Randall, Nathan Haw, Jack McCrary, Jack Wallace, Fred Anderly, Malcolm Powrie, Charles Weeks, Bob Haw, Henry Benson, Martin Dicks, Charles Ritt.

Third Row: William Reddy, Bob Dosen, Edwin DeWerff, Bob Gurnee, Ken Allen, Herb Johnson, Gordon Schwabe, Ed Robertson, Jake Locke, Bob Putnam.

Hi-Y Club

"TO create, maintain, and extend throughout the school and community high standards of Christian character" is the purpose of the Central Hi-Y Club. During the past years some of Central's most active classmen and sportsmen have come from its ranks. The Central chapter was organized in 1924.

The Hi-Y meets every Wednesday at the Y.M.C.A. Any boy at Central is eligible to apply for membership. The programs consist of talks by eminent men of every profession and discussion on current topics. The social functions have included banquets, pow-wows, and a very successful mid-semester dance.

The club is very fortunate in having Mr. Frederick Shoemaker, an understanding and zealous worker, for adviser. The officers of the present term are: Malcolm Powrie, president; Charles Weeks, vice-president; Fred Anderly, secretary; and Jack Wallace, treasurer.

Bird Club

"COME, gentle spring, the ethereal mildness!" is a quotation that is dear to the heart of every bird lover, for this means not only the coming of spring but also the coming of those feathered songsters of the sky. Central's Bird Club members, however, enjoy themselves throughout the school year, for they meet twice a month to enjoy a program together. More practical projects in the spring take the form of hikes every three weeks.

To assure the club of having its membership consist of none but bird lovers, one must pass a bird identification test and have a spring term in biology or its equivalent before he becomes a member. The club had just one social affair this year, a Christmas party at the home of a member.

Miss Irma Meili is the club adviser. The officers are: Bill McFaden, president; Arthur Crawford, vice-president; and Leonard Orvold, secretary.

First Row: Amy Verrall, Miss Meili, adviser, Leonard Orvold, Billy McFaden, Arthur Crawford, Roberta Otis, Elizabeth Lang, June Elmquist.

Second Row: Helene Borcherding, Gordon Axelson, Dorothy Young, Helen Smith, Dorothy McVeigh, Edward Dobrick, Mary Short.

Third Row: Lyman Heidtke, Melva Lenander, Gordon Torgersen, Raymond Rossberg, Henry Blom, Marian Bruss, Hadley Miller.

First Row: Helen Gerry, Miss Olive Allen, adviser, Orville Becklund, Helen Thorsen, Merle Pierre De Maree, Fred Nyquist, Louise Johnson, Dorothy Jo Stoffer.

Third Row: Margaret Meacham, Betty Blackmun, Mary Short, Jim Anderson, Caryl Meyer, Paula Myers, Janet Rood.

Fourth Row: Marjorie Anne Johnson, Betty Erickson, Donald McDermott, Charles Weeks, Robert Vigeant, Catherine Fowler, Recelle Goffstein.

Others: Alice Nolan, Barbara Boeringer, Jane Randall.

Quill and Scroll

CENTRAL'S "Grace N. Elliot Chapter" of the National Quill and Scroll has named its organization after its beloved founder, Grace N. Elliot, a former journalism instructor at this school. The members of this honorary organization are appointed from the staffs of the "World," the "Cehisean," and the "Times" upon the approval of the advisers of these publications. These students must be in the upper third of their class scholastically, and samples of their writing must be approved by the national secretary of the organization. The "Grace N. Elliot Chapter" is the only Quill and Scroll group in St. Paul.

The society pins are presented to the newly admitted members at an informal initiation, and in the spring a banquet is held in a down town hotel.

The present officers are: Barbara Boeringer, president; Orville Becklund, vice-president; Louise Johnson, secretary; Merle DeMaree, treasurer; Fred Nyquist, sergeant-at-arms; and Miss Olive Allen is adviser.

Times

"TOMORROW IS THE DEADLINE!" These words to a "Times" reporter mean that every bit of news available must be handed in to the editor by the next day. Working to meet the deadline, the journalism classes issue the "Times" each week during the school term under the direction of Miss Olive Allen.

The paper is a charter member of the National Scholastic Press Association in which it has held the highest honor rating, All American, for seven consecutive years. The "Times" is also a member of the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, and this year it won a first class rating.

Barbara Boeringer was editor-in-chief with Dorothy Jo Stoffer as associate editor the first term. During the second term Dorothy Jo Stoffer was made editor-in-chief. Merle DeMaree served as city editor for the two terms as did Russell Amundson, circulation manager, and Edmund Mottershead, business manager.

Loads of luck to a pal

Adolph (Connie) Mueller

First Row: Jane Loevinger, Helen Gerry, Merle DeMaree, Miss Allen, adviser, Howard Schultz, Russell Hollingsworth, Dorothy Jo Stoffer, Barbara Boeringer, Charles Weeks, Recelle Goffstein, Paula Myers, Janet Rood.

Second Row: Virginia Martin, Margaret Morgan, Dorothy Germain, Harriet Gregory, Ethel Bachrach, Marjorie Anne Johnson, Walter Gammel, Elaine Wentink, Mary Short, Margaret Meacham, Marjory Harris, Elisabeth Seekins.

Third Row: Catherine Fowler, Helen Thorsen, Reuben Unowsky, Louise Johnson, Randall Stanton, Mary Blazic, Gordon Axelson, Betty Erickson, Clair D. Becker, Jane Priest, Ed Wolter.

Fourth Row: Roy Carlson, Don Garvick, John Lilygren, Mr. E. C. Anderson, business adviser, Adolph Mueller, Edmund Mottershead, Ernest Zack, Don McDermott, Philip Schroeder, Max Vorspan, Simon Frank.

Third Row: Bonnie Jane Berger, Katherine Flad, Gordon Axelson, Jeannette Baker, Norbert Willwerscheid, Mary Brack, Alice Esslinger.

Fourth Row: Caryl Meyer, Louis Thomas, Robert Palmquist, Ernest Zack, Fred Wigginton, Maxine Stubbs.

Cehisean

ISSUING the Cehisean in 1932 involved several problems as the staff desired to finance the annual successfully as well as to produce a book comparable to those of previous years. Selecting the theme of the "Gay Nineties," the editors and the art staff chose pen and ink sketches to illustrate the book and used the class colors, green and white, for the division pages. They altered the style of the annual to some extent, enlarging the introductory section and varying the make-up.

Fred Nyquist was editor-in-chief, and Helen Rogers was associate editor. Jean Arnold was album editor, assisted by Jean Baker, Bonnie Jane Berger, Betty Ives, Maxine Stubbs, Thordis Tanner, Robert Palmquist and Fred Wigginton. The activities section was assigned to Orville Becklund, editor, and his assistants were Alice Esslinger, Katherine Flad, Chester Gaskell, Louise Johnson, Louis Thomas and Mary Brack.

The illustrations were completed by Harriet Noltimier, art editor, aided by Betty Erickson, Betty Doyle, George Steinfeld, Roy Diethorn and Robert LeBlond.

Cehisean

DORIS HAGENSICK, assisted by Gordon Kindy, Norbert Willwerscheid, Elaine Wentink, and Margaret Martin were responsible for the class section. The snapshot staff included Edward Dobrick, editor, Phyllis Feeley, Phyllis Doritty, Philip Schroeder, and Burnell Carlin. The school life staff was headed by Eion Dando and included Harry George, John Miller, Maurice Brahl, Catherine Fowler, and Charles Weeks.

The sports accounts were written by Philip Soucheray, editor, John Nichols, Bill Cary, Bob Eckhardt, Betty Rosness, Betty Seibert, and Elizabeth Meier. Mildred Stier was faculty editor aided by Jean Herschler, Margaret Morgan, and Ernest Zack. Caryl Meyer, Donald McDermott, Maybelle Henderson, and Gordon Axelson contributed the music and drama articles.

Russell Amundson, Russell Hollingsworth, Sidney Bumgardner, and John Swenson were the business staff. The stenographers were Euleta Wander, Bernice Belkin, Evelyn Gunn, Sylvia Smolik, Dorothy Trautz, and Leola Goranson. The advisers were Miss Minette Paro, Miss Helen Hagin, and Miss Florence Vest.

First Row: Eion E. Dando, Philip Soucheray, Euleta Wander, Russell Amundson, Harriet Noltimier, Edward Dobrick, Betty Erickson, Russell Hollingsworth.

Second Row: Betty Doyle, Robert LeBlond, Phyllis Feeley, John Nichols, Elizabeth Meier, Roy Diethorn, Betty Rosness.

Fourth Row: Dorothy Bertram, Virginia McMillan, Jean Leavitt, Alice Leavitt, Dorothy Raschick, Natalie Krauch, Lois Wilhelm.

Girls' Glee Club

CENTRAL'S Girls' Glee Club, which was organized in 1902, has grown in size and importance since it was formed. It is now composed of thirty carefully chosen members having special musical ability.

During the year the club appeared on a P. T. A. entertainment program and sang for the convention of State School Boards. Together with the Boys' Glee Club they furnished appropriate selections for the commencement exercises and, with representative groups from other twin city high schools, sang for the Minnesota Educational Association in a chorus of four hundred voices. The principal work of the second semester was the biennial production staged by both clubs under the capable direction of Miss Lillian Knott. "Crocodile Island," a gay musical comedy with a colorful setting, was presented.

Marion Chapman has acted as accompanist for both Glee Clubs. The officers are Caryl Meyer, president; Donald McDermott, vice-president; Elizabeth Meier, secretary; and Paul Strane, treasurer.

Boys' Glee Club

"THE man that hath no music in himself is fit for treason, stratagems, and spoils" would be a splendid motto for the Boys' Glee Club. Various types of presentations are made by this group in assemblies, for commencement exercises, or on feature nights.

Alternating every year with the Dramatic Club, the Glee Clubs give a major presentation. This year the two Glee Clubs again co-operated in giving a successful performance of "Crocodile Island." The cast was chosen in January, and from then on until the performance both leads and chorus were busy with rehearsals. In the fall the combined Glee Clubs sang in a chorus of four hundred at the Minnesota Educational Association under the direction of Archibald Jones of the University of Minnesota.

The Boys' and Girls' Glee Clubs operate under the same group of officers. They are: Caryl Meyer, president; Donald McDermott, vice-president; Elizabeth Meier, secretary; and Paul Strane, treasurer.

Band

WHETHER by the inspiring swing of martial music, the strains of a popular love ballad, or the expressive themes of an overture, Central's colorful band, under the capable direction of Franklyn Blume, asserts its position as a superior high school musical organization.

Since it first came into being in 1927, the band has grown from thirteen to fifty-three members. The main purpose of this organization is to foster an interest among the students at Central in reed, brass, and percussion instruments. The band is one of the most active and successful organizations of the school. Its activities include playing in booster and patriotic assemblies every year, supplying music at athletic contests, and giving an annual concert.

The officers for this term are: Robert Palmquist, president; Stephen Ballou, vice-president; Lucille Dickman, treasurer; Belva Cornell, secretary; Philip Kennedy, librarian; Burt Horwitz, custodian of capes; and Laird Anderson, concert master.

Orchestra

CENTRAL'S ORCHESTRA, which was organized in 1900, is one of the school's oldest organizations. Its purpose is twofold, for it gives those students who are interested in orchestral music and who play instruments an opportunity to do ensemble work. It also furnishes music for various occasions of the year. This term the group provided the entire accompaniment for the extravaganza, "Crocodile Island," and later in the spring presented an interesting assembly program.

The club usually numbers about forty members; therefore the various sections are equipped with a good variety of instruments. Every year the students in the orchestra play for the commencement exercises, and their program is always thoroughly enjoyed.

Miss Lillian Knott has acted as director and adviser, and her efficiency and judicious advice have been highly appreciated. The officers were Donald Reichling, president; Sylvan Tatkin, vice-president; Bert Schildkraut, secretary and treasurer.

"Crocodile Island"

CROCODILE Island is a mythical land somewhere in the unfathomable tropics. The warm pleasant climate affords the secluded setting of the plot with rich tropical foliage of palm branches, a profusion of endless vines, and glistening sands beside the quiet waters of a tranquil bay. This luxurious scene completes the picturesque setting of the operetta.

The curtain rises slowly disclosing a group of natives paying due reverence to the sacred crocodiles in accordance with their ancient custom. The few pleasures of the island consist of the charming native music, the abundance of exquisite pearls, and the admiration of the two lovely daughters of the king.

If it were not for the annoying presence of Coco Orinoco, who was a wily old wizard and also the guardian of the crocodiles, the happiness of the island and its pleasure loving ruler, King Bongazoola, would be complete.

Sorrow descends upon the once happy island; King Bongalooza and his chamberlain, the Honorable Nitwit, are to be fed to the crocodiles as a sacrifice to the sacred oracle. The king's clever daughters seek to contrive some means of escape.

"Crocodile Island"

IN THE midst of the plans some curious American tourists arrive upon the island to view with wonder the famous pearls. Two young men of the party, Thomas Brooks and Jefferson Penfield, lose no time in becoming acquainted with Pearl and Petal. Hopalong Simpson, a colored porter, successfully impersonates the oracle and sentences the wizard to become the victim of his own folly, and all ends happily.

This excellent production proved to be very popular and contributed a great deal to enrich the school life at Central. Miss Lillian Knott, the director, deserved much credit for the success of this large undertaking. This program was one of the outstanding events of the year.

When the musical extravaganza was presented, Lawrence Gates played King Bongazoola; Ellen June Anderson, Pearl; Leona Scheunemann, Petal; Edmund Mottershead, Coco Orinoco; and Arnold Fink, Nitwit.

Others in the cast were Aunt Abigail, Caryl Meyer; and her Nephews, Donald McDermott and Sherwood Brady playing the part of Tom Brooks and Jeff Penfield; and Hopalong Simpson, humorously portrayed by Robert Hanesworth.

Leads: Lawrence Gates, King Bongazoola; Ellen June Anderson, Pearl; Leona Scheunemann, Petal; Edmund Mottershead, Coco Orinoco; and Arnold Fink, Nitwit.

Helen Rogers, Virginia Rankin, Wallace Erickson, June Logan, Paul Earle, Orville Becklund, Jeanne Kimball, Charles Weeks.

Thanksgiving Assembly

THE Thanksgiving Assembly featured an interesting play, "A Rose of Plymouth Town," under the excellent direction of Miss Helen Austin. The parts were splendidly taken by those in the play.

The characters were: Miles Standish, Paul Earle; Garret Foster, Charles Weeks; John Mageson, Orville Becklund; Phillipe De La Marre, Wallace Erickson; Merion Chillengsley, Virginia Rankin; Barbara Standish, June Logan; Resolute Story, Helen Rogers; and Rose De La Marre, Jeanne Kimball.

The costumes were very interesting because of their antiquity of style and their marked plainness. The new stage set also added a great deal to the performance. The plot centers around the young man, Garret Foster, who is wanted for stealing corn and other vegetables from the colonists. He enters the De La Marre home and Rose hides him, for Miles Standish is after him. Garret Foster is caught, but Rose pleads with the governor to free him, and the play closes, leaving the audience to understand that Rose and Garret will soon be married.

"Bones"

UPON the requests of many of the students, "Bones," the play given for the "C" Club Banquet, was repeated in an assembly on March 1. Under the direction of Miss Helen Austin, who wrote the play, the players performed splendidly.

The characters were as follows: Bones, a journalist, Charles Weeks; Custer, a rival journalist, Roger Matters; Mrs. Collins, a flirtatious widow, Helen Rogers; Josephine, a trained nurse, Katherine Willigan; Mr. Rose, an invalid, Robert McClure; Dotty, Elizabeth Ann Fitch; Angela, a patient, Murillo Peaker; superintendent, Jean Abernethy; maid, Margaret Boerner; and yard man, Warren Olson.

The plot is centered around Napoleon Bonaparte, "Bones," the young journalist who is considered insane because Custer has sent a note to the superintendent to that effect before he deserts Bones, who has fallen asleep on the sanitorium grounds. The fact that "Bones" insists his name is Bonaparte convinces the authorities that he is deranged, and Custer is free to go alone for "the scoop." Custer returns to find that "Bones" has had a pleasant time falling in love with Josephine, Custer's charming cousin.

Margaret Boerner, Murillo Peaker, Helen Rogers, Jean Abernethy, Katherine Willigan, Robert McClure, Charles Weeks, Elizabeth Ann Fitch, Roger Matters, Warren Olson.

"The Trysting Place"

THE students in Miss Eunice Wells's expression 2 class presented a humorous play entitled "The Trysting Place" by Booth Tarkington at an assembly early in May.

The cast of characters was: Lancelot Briggs, William Shryock; Mrs. Curtis, Dorothy Popp; Mrs. Briggs, Lois Sharpless; Jessie Briggs, Dorothy Eginton; Rupert Smith, Herbert Johnson; Mr. Ingoldsby, Ernest Zack; the mysterious voice, Paul Villaume.

The play is a romantic comedy dealing with the love affairs of Lancelot Briggs, a typical Booth Tarkington character much like the love-sick Willie Baxter of "Seventeen", and Mrs. Curtis, a young widow. Lancelot's sister, Jessie, and Rupert Smith are in love, and Mr. Ingoldsby proposes to Mrs. Briggs. Comedy is furnished by Lancelot, Rupert, and a mysterious voice, in turn, hiding under the settee and chairs while the various couples carry on their love-making in a place they thought nobody ever frequented.

"The Right House but the Wrong Door"

AT an open meeting of the Dramatic Club three one-act plays were presented among which was "The Right House but the Wrong Door" written by Miss Helen Austin and directed by Maybelle Henderson.

The cast of characters was: Peggy Merrington, Jean Kimball; Marian Winchester, Maybelle Henderson; Mike Mulligan, George McDougall; Gerald Danforth, Philip Soucheray; Henry Rupert, Arthur Roe; Jack Merrington, Orville Becklund.

The plot concerns a young playwright, Gerald Danforth, and his friends who come supposedly to Jack Merrington's apartment to rehearse a new play Gerald has written. By mistake they get into the apartment of Peggy Merrington, a great movie actress and Jack's cousin. As the rehearsal is progressing, Peggy enters into it and embarrasses the young men when they find out who she really is. Peggy decides to give Gerald's play a try and accepts him as her leading man for life.

Football

WITH only four lettermen returning, the Red and Black prospects for a successful season were doubtful; however, with this nucleus and a record turnout of over a hundred boys, Coaches Blume, Buser, and Hahn were able to select an "A" squad deserving much credit for their fine record.

Co-captains were introduced this year for the first time in Central's football history. Fred Johnson and Jack Wallace received the unusual honor, and their work should be highly commended.

Central's loss to Washington crumpled her hopes for an encounter with the Minneapolis champions. Washington was our only set-back, however, and we cinched second place in the conference when we tied with Mechanic Arts 6-6. The climax of the season came when Central played Mechanic Arts on Armistice Day. Outplayed and beaten for three periods, the Trainers rallied and scored on Martinson's fifty-yard run with only three minutes to go. Playing in two inches of snow, the teams battled with the old fighting spirit.

The selection of a "most valuable man" every year was introduced by Mr. Blume, and the name of Jack Wallace was chosen by the team to lead the list on the new trophy.

Basketball

COACH Frank Galles's basketeers this year won the city championship. They decisively defeated their first four opponents and anticipated a perfect record in the first round.

Then the Minutemen played Mechanics and found themselves on the short end of 24-21 score after a five minute overtime period. Central again met Mechanics the following week and revenged themselves by a 33-20 victory, Tom Corbett playing an exceptionally fine game and taking scoring honors. The following week Central lost a thriller to Washington by a score of 20-18 but came back a week later by defeating Harding 30-18 and winning the championship.

In the twin city championship tilt Central lost a heart-breaker to North Minneapolis 18-14 in the last two minutes of the game. In the regional tournament the Minutemen suffered a 24-18 defeat to Red Wing, the champions.

Those comprising the team were: Captain Thomas Corbett, John Schroeder, Jack Campbell, Albin Anderson, Howard Schultz, Ben Storey, Bob Gurnee, and Brace Gurnee. Thomas Corbett and John Schroeder were all-city selections. The team chose John Schroeder and Jack Campbell as next year's co-captains.

First Row: Howard Schultz, Mr. Milton Hahn, Thomas Corbett, captain, Mr. Frank Galles, Jack Campbell.
Second Row: Albin Anderson, Brace Gurnee, Bob Gurnee, Ben Storey.
Third Row: Simon Frank, manager; John Schroeder, Adolphe Thomas, manager; Burnell Carlin, manager.

Third Row: Gordon Schwabe, Philip Soucheray, Walter Smith, Robert Zavoral, Elliot Scheer, Harold Wrightson.

Swimming

AFTER defeating Mechanic Arts, Johnson, Cretin, and Humboldt individually, Coach R. D. Berg's tankers wound up their eighth consecutive victorious season by winning the city championship meet with 45½ points. Mechanics was second with 25½ points, and the other schools were below that score.

Fred Wentink was captain of the squad, but his excellent services were lost when he graduated at the end of the first semester. James Brandt, one of the outstanding swimmers in the association, then took the helm for the major part of the season.

Brandt was a fast dash man and led all contenders for the backstroke title. Bill Schryock finished second in the city breast stroke race, and his consistent winning helped Central in all of the meets. Donald Smith, swimming in the 50-yard dash and the relay, and Philip Soucheray, swimming in the relay and the backstroke also brought points home. The medley relay team of Brandt, Shryock, and Wrightston lacked only a fraction of a second to qualify for the state title meet.

The water polo team regained the title lost to Mechanics during the previous season by defeating every team.

Intramural Hockey

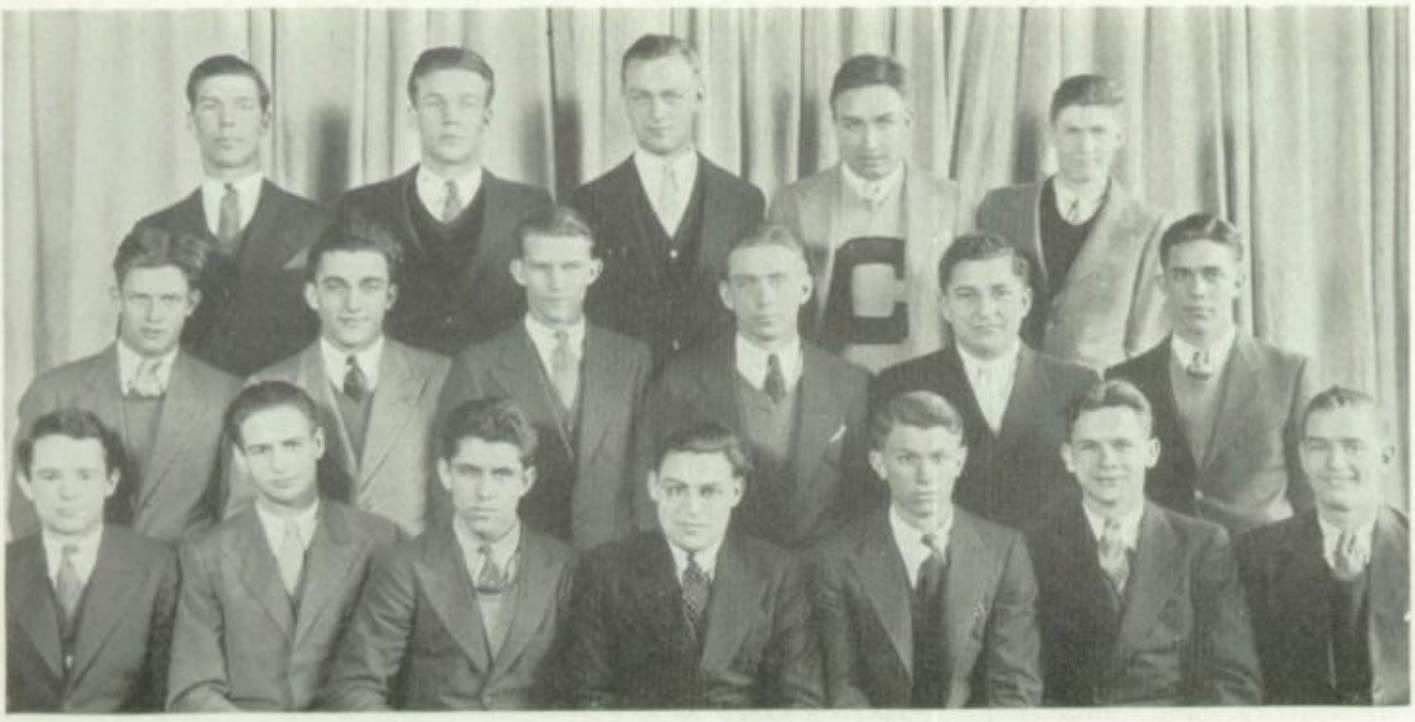
INTRAMURAL hockey had its most successful season this year. With six teams, ideal hockey weather, and the lack of a conference team, the games were run off with a smoothness never before experienced at Central. The well organized sextets attracted many spectators and created a great deal of enthusiasm, especially since there was no city hockey as the Athletic Board decided that it must be abandoned for an indefinite period.

The Aces downed the over-confident Invincibles in their first tilt and then proceeded to defeat each team in the league. The Shindiggers, with four victories and led by Loane Randall, gave the Aces a good fight in the final game but were unable to beat the fast pace setters.

The boys receiving the intramural hockey medals are: Everett Hansen, Henry Eisenhauer, Joe Hess, Clarence Olson, Charles Best, Hugh Rowley, Arthur Schnell, Robert Dosen, Carl Miller, and John Nichols. The team was captained by John Nichols.

Considerable credit should be given to Mr. Jack McCallum, Mr. Arthur White, and Burt Horwitz, student hockey manager. Burt proved to be an excellent manager and earned his letter.

First Row: Robert Dosen, Charles Best, John Nichols, Joe Hess, Everett Hansen, Clarence Olson.
Second Row: Arthur Schnell, Carl Miller, Hugh Rowley, Henry Eisenhauer, Burt Horwitz, Manager.



First Row: Ned Campbell, Arthur Rowe, Keith Gilmore, Edward Lichter, Howard Gray, Gordon Gilbert, Bill Donahower.
Second Row: Dale Streeter, Jack Wallace, Clarence Olson, John Schneller, Jacob Locke, Martin Lukoskie.
Third Row: Bob Gurnee, Brace Gurnee, Hugh Rowley, Arthur Bussman, Robert Anderson.

Intramural Kittenball

IN 1932 the kittenball league was composed of only one division instead of the usual two. The smaller number was not because of a lack of interest but was a result of a lapse of two years and the ruling which will not permit baseball men to play kittenball.

The teams entered were: Red Birds, Collegians, Biffies, Orioles, Cowboys, Snakecharmers, Cremators, Cobras, Gigilos, and Giants. The championship seemed to be within the grasp of the Biffies, the Cowboys, the Red Birds, or the Cremators. Later, however, a dark horse appeared in the form of the Giants. They nearly had the title salted away when they lost it to the Cowboys in an upset 10-3. The Gurnee battery was partly responsible for the victory with Edward Litman doing fine work as relief pitcher. Marlyn Youngren played fine ball for the losers.

Lloyd Conley, Bill Donahower, and Herman Gorzansky were the sluggers of the league, all of them having high batting averages.

The tournament was supervised by Mr. Bret E. Cooley, managed by Aaron Zweig and Robert Baker, and umpired by Sidney Thwing.

Intramural Basketball

THIS year intramural basketball was adopted in place of class basketball and proved its popularity by the large number of teams entered in the league.

In the final game of the season Varner's Vicious Varmits tripped the Deehorns by a score of 8-6 to take the championship. The winners received medals in recognition of their success. The Varners consisted of Jacob Locke, Lawrence Larsen, Ned Campbell, Lee Parks, Fred Carlson, Bill Donahower, Joe Simmer, and Fennel McCaffrey.

The teams in order of their standings were: Varners, Deehorns, Tschidas, Minutemen, Dodos, Monkeys, Donickers, Shamrocks, Rangers, Killers, Hawks, Comets, Bears, and Musketeers. The intramural all-star quintet included: forwards, Keith Gilmore and Edward O'Rourke; center, Lawrence Larsen; guards, Kenneth Allen and Richard Fineburg.

"Deadeyes" were numerous among the various teams. Kenneth Allen topped the scoring column with a total of 78 points, and Milton Siegal was a close second having 74. The tournaments were supervised by Mr. J. T. McCallum, assisted by Fred Johnson.

First Row: Fred Johnson, Fennel McCaffery, Bill Donahower, Joe Simmer, Jacob Locke, Fred Carlson, Ned Campbell.

Second Row: Blair Lampert, Howard Schultz, Kennth Allen, Dominic Rocco, George Vollhaber, Homer Martin, Edward O'Rourke.

Third Row: Robert Mulcrone, William Proetz, Fred Tschida, Roger Francis, John Landmark, Arthur Rowe, Herbert Johnson, Keith Gilmore.

First Row: Hollis Merrick, Sam Mogol, Howard Reichling, Gene Dean, captain, Roger Meacham, Robert Lewis, Donald Bonaparte.

Second Row: James Francois, Earl Kverno, Thomas Dawson, Bob Gurnee, Wendell Strandberg, Charles Mullaly, Malcolm Powrie, James Brandt.

Third Row: Robert Bitney, Donald McDermott, Frank Parker, Paul Flannigan, Brace Gurnee, George Putnam, De Wilton Attridge.

Fourth Row: Mr. Frank Galles, Kenneth Gorman, Mr. John Harp, Leo Stewart, Robert Petterson.

Track

WINNING by a substantial margin, the track team of 1932, coached by Mr. Frank Galles, again captured the city title for Central. Led by Gene Deane, who is an outstanding half-miler, the team showed up well by defeating Cretin and St. Thomas in outside meets.

Besides Deane, last year's team saw two other stars in the persons of Robert Lewis in the one hundred yard dash and Wendell Strandberg in the four hundred and forty yard dash. Robert Lewis previously starred in football and basketball, and Thomas Dawson, a fine hurdler, also starred in those same sports.

This year's team will be led by Malcolm Powrie, who is a high-jump artist of first rank.

The new team will contain a wealth of old material, and there are many promising new-comers. Brace Gurnee, big weight man, will again put the shot, and Frank Parker will continue with the javelin. Donald Reichling, who ran the half-mile with Captain Deane last year, will again be seen in action. This team of experienced veterans should bring another title for 1933.

Baseball

LAST year, Central's team defeated St. Thomas, St. Paul Park, Harding, Johnson, Mechanics, and Washington. The Minutemen lost two games to Cretin and one to Humboldt.

The outstanding game of the season was with Mechanics when Fred Anderly knocked out a home run with the bases loaded to raise the final score to 11 to 8 and leave Central with only the Humboldt game between it and the title.

Because of the ill-fated game which Central lost to the Indians by a score of 5-3, the best the Red and Black ball team could do last year was to tie with Mechanics for first place.

The team was coached by Mr. Milton Hahn, and captained by Albin Anderson who did a stellar job of hurling. Dominic Rocco held down first base with Jack Campbell doing the catching. Rocco chalked up a batting average of 447, which was the highest in the lineup. Sam Kosberg played 2nd, Howard Schultz 3rd, and Fred Anderly shortstop. Dick Donahower, Warren Bellanger, Melvin Liszt, and Loyes Stenson played in the field. Managers for the team were Herman Gordon and Melvin Liszt.

First Row: Warren Bellinger, Jack Campbell, Dominic Rocco, Albin Anderson, captain, Fennel McCaffrey, Sam Kozberg, Fred Anderly.
Second Row: Wayne Withers, Fred Rule, Howard Schultz, Robert McGiffin, Loyes Stenson, Robert Costello.
Third Row: Melvin Liszt, Thomas Corbett, David Abrahamson, Dick Donahower, William Mathews.
Fourth Row: Herman Gordon, Mr. Alfred Buser, Walter Erickson.

First Row: Ben Storey, William Meyer, captain, Mr. Robert Berg.
Second Row: Lawrence Larsen, Donald Ruth.

Golf

ALTHOUGH golf is a comparatively new branch of inter-high school competition, it has taken its place with the regular list of athletics.

The 1931 team was not so successful, but in 1932 nearly the same team came back to shoot their way to victory. Last year's team defeated Harding, Mechanics, Humboldt, and Johnson in the regular league and went outside to Shattuck, U. High, South St. Paul, and Cretin. Central won 12 out of 14 matches.

The 1933 team is made entirely of newcomers since every team member and the alternates of last year graduated. Lawrence Larsen maintained the number one position last year with William Meyer, George McDougall, and James Francois making up the rest of the team. Ben Johnson, Donald Ruth, and Harold Wrightson played the alternate positions. Mr. Robert Berg is the faculty sponsor.

This year golf is taking on a more universal aspect. A golf club is being organized, and intramural teams are being formed in preparation for a round-robin tournament. The winning team will be rewarded with intramural emblems, and the best golfers will make up the school team.

Skating Team

TWO MORE trophies were added to Central's collection this year by the skating team. This team, the first of its kind at Central, met with outstanding success during the past season. They became city champs, outskating all of the St. Paul conference teams as well as those of Cretin and St. Thomas.

Then at the Hippodrome Skating Carnival they beat South, the winners of the Minneapolis title, for the twin city championship. The St. Paul conference meet was held at the municipal auditorium and was completed in one day. On the afternoon of Washington's Birthday the preliminaries were held, and the Minutemen beat Humboldt to qualify for the finals.

That night in the finals they defeated Washington in a tight race in which Edward Hall, the number three man, captured the lead and held it for Robert Goldman, who broke the tape a fraction of a second ahead of the Washington anchor man.

The team, which was managed by Mr. Arthur White of the faculty, was composed of Robert Goldman, as anchor man, Edward Hall, Dale Streeter, and Frank Parker.

First Row: Harvey Lieberman, Jerome Grodin, Alvin Lieberman.
Second Row: Eion Dando, Mr. John Harp.

Tennis

FOR THE first time in the twenty-three years since tennis was introduced in St. Paul as a high school sport, the Central netmen failed to live up to their record of decisively defeating all the city conference teams. Nevertheless, they tied Mechanic Arts High School for the city championship.

In addition to this, the Minutemen won the Northwestern interscholastic and state high school championships. In the Northwest singles matches Harvey Lieberman went to the semi-finals, where he was finally defeated by Grover Fletcher, an outstanding player of Humboldt High School.

The team, which was under the direction of Mr. John Harp of the faculty, was managed by Eion Dando with Harry George as assistant manager. Kenneth Moen, the captain, played in the number one position but was forced out of the Northwestern conference because of a bad wrist. Harvey Lieberman was number 2 man, Albin Anderson number 3, Alvin Lieberman and Louis Miller alternately holding the number 4 position, and Jerome Grodin at number 5.

Jerome Grodin, who is the only letter man of last year was chosen the captain of this year's team.

Athletic Board

ONE OF the most important cogs in our athletic machine is the Athletic Board consisting of nine members appointed by Mr. Marshall.

The duty of the board is to supervise the use of the athletic fund. All sports at Central must be self-supporting, and these men, therefore, must regulate to the best advantage the money derived from donations and gate receipts. The lack of funds necessitated the board to abandon hockey for an indefinite period.

Among the many duties of the board are the awarding of all letters, the purchasing of all supplies and equipment, the drawing up of all intramural schedules, and the handling of all athletic difficulties.

The newly elected members of the organization this year are: president, Mr. Varner, football manager; vice-president, Mr. Berg, coach of swimming and golf teams; secretary, Mr. Meier, purchasing agent; treasurer, Mr. Christenson; Mr. McCallum, manager of intramural sports; Mr. White, coach of hockey team; Mr. Cooley, manager of kittenball team; Mr. Harp, manager of track and tennis teams; Mr. Schwabe, custodian of supplies; and Mr. Buser, coach of football and baseball teams.

Girls' Athletic Association

ENTHUSIASM in the G. A. A., an association organized as an incentive to encourage girls to participate in athletics, has risen higher than ever before. Girls may choose the sports in which they wish to participate. Each sport is under supervision of an enthusiastic girl who has a technical knowledge of it.

Since the addition of a ninth period at Central, the regular monthly meeting has been discontinued, and a big evening party once a year has taken its place.

For the past year the sport heads were: Lucille Harris, tennis; Maxine Sullivan, skating; Marie Fredstrom, skiing, tobogganing; Katherine Flad, horseback riding; Betty Rosness, swimming; Amy Verrall, hiking; Jean Garvin, golf; and Mary Lambert, tumbling. Margaret Meacham and Margaret Morgan were the sports' writers for the "Times," while Betty Seibert took care of general publicity. The program chairman was Elizabeth Meier, who was assisted by Jean Herschler.

The officers of the past year were Meta Hollender, president during the first term; Jean Arnold, vice-president and acting president during the second term; Marion Rosness, recording secretary; and Frances Casey, secretary and treasurer.

Girls' "C" Club

THE "C" club was formed about twenty years ago at a reunion of some former Central students.

This organization is composed of all those girls who have been awarded with a "C" through the Girls' Athletic Association. "C's" are conferred to girls for earning 750 points and All-City letters for 1250 points.

"C's" were received in May, 1933, by Marie Fredstrom, Esther Brandt, Helen Carkin, Isabel Gullifer, Gertrude Kowalske, Katherine Flad, Marion Rosness, Doris Strane, Maxine Sullivan, Jeanne Garvin, Catherine Harrington, Bernelda Sprain, Hazel Koehn, Geneva Rave, Harriet Niebergall, Carol Mitchell, Helen Molin, Betty Mitchell, Catherine Francis, Mable Swanstrom, Edith Bohlin, Mary Murphy, Dorothy Groehler, Barbara Watson, Joyce Scott, Ruth Woodrich, Deloris White, Adelaide Meier, Ruth Frey, Henrietta Wahlers, Margarete Wahlers, Phyllis Christensen, Mildred Chernov, Dorothy Vernon, Marion Snell, Frances Kabot, Dorothy Kipp, Ruth Magnus, Dorothy Meacham, June Elmquist, Helen Schroeder, Natalie Lethert, and Marion Johnson.

The girls receiving All-City letters are Margaret Morgan, Amy Verrall, Lucille Harris, Frances Casey, Alice Leavitt, Naomi Briggs, Evelyn Graham, Dorothy Silver, Roegene Night, Betty Schroeder, Gloria Stevens, Elizabeth Meier, Betty Seibert, Jean Arnold, Mary Short, and Mary Alice Jenkins.

First Row: June Hirsch, Roegene Night, Harriet Niebergall, Doris Strane, Margaret Morgan, Ethel McGehan, Naomi Briggs, Dorothy Silver, Marion Snell.

Referees

THIS group of girls numbers 35 and is affiliated with the G. A. A. It renders an invaluable service to the advancement of the physical educational program at Central. The duties of the referees consist primarily in aiding the gymnasium instructor in refereeing the many athletic activities.

The work is not easy, for the girls have to study the rules of the different games because it is absolutely imperative that they be well versed in the rules. They meet weekly and often have tests on the rules; then each referee has a weekly class of which she takes charge.

In doing this work the girls gain for themselves a first-hand knowledge of such sports as basketball, volley-ball, kitten-ball, tennis, fieldball, and tumbing under the direction of the gymnasium instructor, Miss Ryan.

For the last few months the referees have been working very hard learning the exercises and dances which are to be given in the Physical Education Demonstration. It is necessary that they know these perfectly in case they have to take charge of rehearsals or substitute for one of the performers.

Tumbling

TUMBLING and volley-ball were offered to all G. A. A. members for about two months this year.

Mary Lambert was the very able head for this year. The Central Tumbling Team includes: Olivia Botha, Rita Bullock, Dorothy Cooper, Dorothy Dunn, Helen Dunn, Majel Espeland, Catherine Fowler, Sylvia Goldenberg, Elizabeth Hall, Margie Hartmann, Evelyn Haye, Eileen Johnson, Hazel Koehn, Mary Lambert, Mary Jane Lambert, Delores Lane, Eileen Lang, Cleo Lee, Virginia Martin, Ethel McGeehan, Carol Mitchell, Margaret Primrose, Maryan Root, Rose Ruprecht, Lucille Ryan, Bernice Shurger, Sara Schwartz, Mary Lou Skipton, Marian Snell, Dorothy Stansby, Gloria Stevens, June Storberg, Doris Strane, Jane Trygstad, and Betty Wilson.

These girls give a Physical Education Demonstration each year when they exhibit their ability by doing single and double stunts and pyramids of different types.

Under the leadership of Doris Strane six volley-ball teams have been formed. A tournament was held where the team winning the most points was proclaimed the winner.

First Row: Margaret Morgan, Doris Strane, Frances Casey, Meta Hollender, Jean Arnold, Marion Rosness, Amy Verrall.

Second Row: Betty Rosness, Lucille Harris, Catherine Harrington, Katherine Flad, Mary Lambert, Jeanne Garvin.

Third Row: Margaret Meacham, Marie Fredstrom, Maxine Sullivan, Gertrude Kowalske, Sylvia Smolik, Elizabeth Meier, Betty Seibert.

Executive Board

THE EXECUTIVE board of G. A. A. represents the organization as a whole. The members of the board are elected each year at the general election in which every G. A. A. member participates. The group consists of the heads of sports as well as the officers of the club. Those holding offices are Meta Hollander, president; Jean Arnold, vice-president; Frances Casey, secretary-treasurer; Marion Rosness, recording secretary. The two chairmen are Betty Seibert, publicity chairman and Elizabeth Meier, program chairman.

The sport heads are Catherine Harrington, basketball; Gertrude Kowalske, fieldball; Maxine Sullivan, skating; Sylvia Smolik, kittenball; Doris Strane, volleyball; Lucille Harris, tennis; Betty Rosness, swimming; Mary Lambert, tumbling; Amy Verrall, hiking; Marie Fredstrom, skiing and tobogganing, and Katherine Flad, horseback riding. Horseback riding, a sport recently introduced to members of the Central G. A. A., has proved very popular and successful.

Each sport head records the points any girl has made in her particular sport, while the recording secretary keeps account of the entire number of points each girl has made during the year.

The girls meet every two weeks and with the aid of Miss Ryan discuss the problems of the organization and arrange the methods for running off the sports in G. A. A.

Basketball and Fieldball

BASKETBALL has become a very popular sport in G. A. A. The season ended with the sophomore team as winners of the tournament. Their excellent teamwork enabled them to defeat the seniors 19-12, while the seniors defeated the juniors 20-10. The members of the sophomore team were Mary Murphy, captain; Gertrude Kowalske, Eileen Lang, Cleo Lee, Hazel Warricks, forwards; Roberta Blaylock, Ruth Magnus, Doris Shannon, guards.

The senior team consisted of Catherine Harrington, captain; Margaret Meacham, Dorothy Nolterieke, Adelaide Meier, forwards; Maxine Sullivan, Frances Casey, Elizabeth Meier, guards.

The juniors were Lucille Harris, captain; Katherine Francis, Helen Molin, Delores Ritter, Evelyn Graham, forwards; Henrietta Wahlers, Margarite Wahlers, Ruth Frey, guards.

Fieldball was a lively and popular sport in which the seniors obtained the championship when they defeated the juniors 4-0 and the sophomores 6-1. The senior team was composed of Betty Seibert, captain; Frances Casey, Meta Hollender, Maxine Sullivan, Edith Berry, Betty Schroeder, and Betty Rosness, forwards; Catherine Harrington, Helen Schroeder, and Dorothy Noltierke, half-backs; Jean Arnold and Elizabeth Meier, full-backs; and Alice Leavitt, goal guard.

First Row: Eileen Lang, Roberta Blaylock, Ruth Magnus, Doris Shannon, Mary Murphy, Cleo Lee, Hazel Warricks.
Third Row: Jean Arnold, Elizabeth Meier, Maxine Sullivan, Betty Schroeder, Alice Leavitt, Helen Schroeder.

Girl Rooters Club

ONE OF the largest girls' clubs at Central is the Girl Rooters Club. It was organized this year and has proved to be a valuable organization. Any girl at Central is eligible for membership. Miss Grace Bienhoff is the capable adviser of the club.

The object of the club is to keep up the school spirit of Central at all of the games, where a section is reserved for the use of the girls in the club. A group of girls originated the idea of organizing this club in order to improve the rooting of Central at the football games. During this season they sold souvenir football programs for the Central-Mechanics game. The club also sponsored a pep fest held the night before the game.

The officers for the first semester were Jeanette Baker, president; Phyllis Dorritty, vice-president; Eleanor Kain, treasurer; and Florence Munger, secretary. Those holding offices the second semester were Elizabeth Clark, president; Jeanette Baker, vice-president; Lorraine McKilligan, treasurer; and Betty Jane Hills, secretary.

This year the work of the girls was very successful, and next year they plan to have their own cheer leaders.

Coaches

FRANK GALLES—He divides his time between basketball and track. With his ever-present bow tie he makes champions almost as fast as the seasons roll around.

AL. BUSER—The big All-American has a joke for every occasion and also strength and sincerity that inspires every fellow who works with him.

MISS EMMA RYAN—Our popular girls' athletic instructor is fond of all sports. She is enthusiastic and capable and inspires the girls with a fine spirit of sportmanship.

ROBERT BERG—Mr. Berg's swimming teams are something that can be depended on. Many boys who get their start with him become leading swimmers in college.

MILTON HAHN—Arriving in the fall, he brought an abundance of natural coaching ability with him and helped turn out winning football, basketball, and baseball teams.

JOHN HARP—He is always associated with tennis. His annual tournaments encourage the sport and bring to light many fine players who would otherwise remain unknown.

FRANKLYN BLUME—Mr. Blume never turns out a team that isn't a fighting one. The fellows who work under him come out with an indomitable spirit that they never lose.

Captains

JACK WALLACE—He plays hard and never lacks that fighting spirit. As well as being an All-City selection, he was chosen as the most valuable player on the team.

MALCOLM POWRIE—"Mush," as he is known to many, is the man who goes places over the bamboo bar. He is good to the last drop.

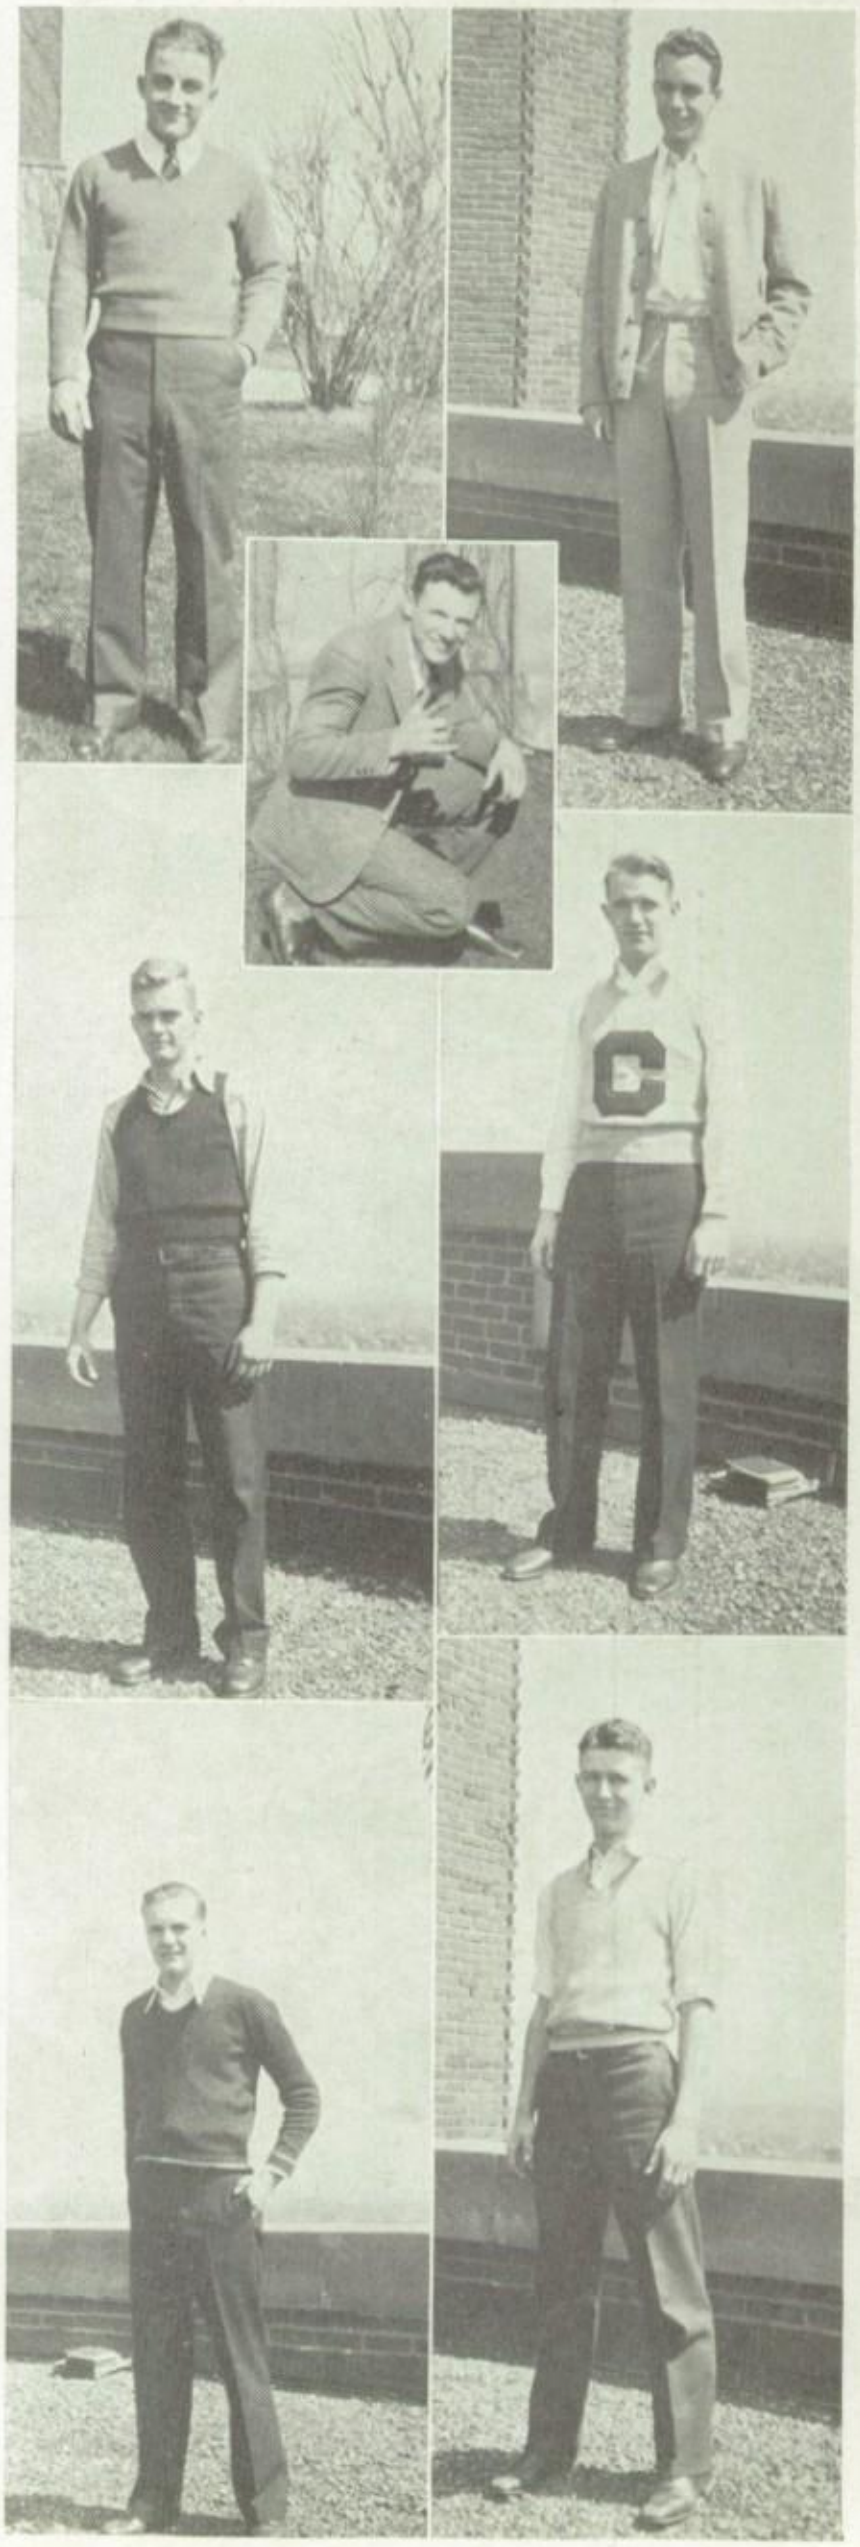
EDWIN DE WERFF—He is a familiar figure at every athletic contest in which Central participates. His efforts draw forth the cheers that help the team to win.

ALBIN ANDERSON—When Al. finishes football, he plays basketball. When he is through with that, he gets out his tennis racquet and baseball uniform and keeps busy.

FRED JOHNSON—Fred has given his valuable service in the line for three years. He is a real leader and has spurred his teammates on with that will to win.

JIM BRANDT—Conscientious practice and a will to win made Jim one of the outstanding swimmers in the city and a high ranking man in the state meet.

TOM CORBETT—After playing three years on the basketball team, he finished by being an All-City selection. His playing was largely responsible for the championship.



Oh, day of days! After the tennis game the two-mile bicycle race will be the grand finale of the annual field day, one of the more frivolous moments of school activity in the romantic nineties. We present the lighter aspects of school life today— personalities, events, and interests.

End of the seniors' high school days.

Homecoming Antics

November fourth is memorable for a bonfire, pep fest, parade and what-not. Snow, sunshine, and rain couldn't stop those snake dances. Somebody's Ford scored a triumph in the parade, but look what happened to Tom Robert's model "T". Brace Gurnee, Adolph Muller, Fred Johnson form the midget backfield. Jacob Locke, Bob Gurnee, Art Bussman, Fennel McCaffery, and Bill Donahower pose on the campus. Elizabeth Kennedy is the intriguing sophomore with Jack Wicks and Gale Libby.

Stage Stars

Wednesdays are popular at Central, for that is assembly day. June Logan and Harriet Reynolds entertain us with taps as does that dainty Miss Dorothy Dillon. Lewis Miller as the ghost and Gordon Davis as Cleopatra display hidden talents. Betty Erickson and Jean Greenwalt are charming pirates in the "Times" revue. What? Is June a puritan accompanying Virginia Rankin? Our associate editor is with Miles in the person of Paul Earle. Orville Becklund and Jeanne Kimball are two more puritans in the Thanksgiving assembly.

ACT I, SCENE I

Little Nell: "Hector, my own, our marriage seems further away each fleeting hour."

Hector: "Yes, my love, but Rudolph shall not balk us."

Mother O'Toole: "But, children, Rudolph will be here any time to foreclose our mortgage, and if he does where will I live? Nellie, you must marry Rudolph!"

(Hector leaves for the bank to draw his life's savings)

Enter Rudolph: "Hidty-didty, me fair Nellie! You must come with me to the little church off Times Square to be spliced with me. If you don't your mother goes out into the cold!"

(Mother O'Toole faints)

Little Nell: "Oh, please sir, anything but that! Rudolph, if I marry you, it is only for my mother."

(Sounds of approaching horses)

Hector rushes into the door (ouch!): "Here is the money for the farm— my life's savings."

(We regret to say that the end of this story has not been finished, but we can assure you that it will be in next year's annual.)

On and Off the Campus

Boys and girls follow their various avocations, serious or otherwise. Ed Mottershead and Jane Loevinger cogitate over a deep chess problem while Phyllis Feeley indulges in a paddle-pop. Betty Tucker and Katherine Flad clean the cottage while the pajama clad misses acquire a sun tan. The clever magician is Maurice Goldman. The bookladen juniors are Irene Pomranke and Carol Manchester.

Leisure Moments

The carefree poses are partly explained by the lack of classes and assignments, although the picnickers find plenty to occupy them. The hikers are Jane Trygstad, Elva Munson, Peggy Foss, Virginia Kennedy, and Marjorie Miller. Dorothy Jo Stoffer pauses for a moment. One good looking pair we identify as Marjorie Culp and Paul Moon. The swimmers are Marion Rosness, Betty Rosness, and Doris Strane.

Class Will

Class wills were quite the vogue in Central's yearbooks in the gay, frivolous, what-have-you nineties; therefore we thought it a good idea to have one this year.

All in favor signify by the usual sign; the reponents, no. . . .

Well, we'll have one ANYWAY! We can't leave a blank page here; or at least we're not supposed to. Who started this? Proceed.

Being mindful of the uncertainty of life, graduating, etcetera, and being of sound mind and in full possession of our senses, (wisecracks here are inappropriate and uncalled for, i. e. we couldn't think of any) we, the graduating class of 1933, do hereby make, publish, and declare this instrument our class will and testament. (or did you know that?)

Moreover, we therefore, hereinafter, nevertheless, and however bequeath, give, bestow, quitclaim, and present gratuitously to future classes, 1 (one) Central High School to have and to hold hereafter for ever and ever until said school, shall (a.) crumble away (b.) burn (c.) be bombed or (d.) be destroyed in other manner whatsoever, howsoever, howareyou, and whatisthisanyway. Now where were we? Oh yes. . . .

Moreover: having had several staff members lean over our shoulder and inquire what "that" meant; having been a little doubtful ourselves, and having run out of legal vernacular, (are we mortified!) we have, after due reflection and cogitation, decided to lapse into informality, commonly known as English. (of course you realized we couldn't spiel that grandificent language forever).

For you, dear, dear, dear, oh dear, oh dear—WHOA! (it must be that 3.2 stuff). Now let's start that over. For you, dear seniors (so there) we leave an indefinite but thickly populated area covertly designated as the "front hall." So-oooo, (Ed Wynnishly warbled) polish up your hall technique now; you'll be upper classmen soon. (you hope) (At this junction a certain Doris H., who was perusing the copy, queried dryly, sacrilegiously, but not without justification, 'Is this humorous?" The hammer, James!)

Someone suggested willing the beatific smile of George Putnam to some class or other. But imagine George wandering about a college with woe-begone sadness while his smile floated airily about our classrooms. "Tsk, tsk!" as some sage expostulated. "Redic!" (see, we weren't joshing when we said we were going to lapse into informality).

Now take "Diana" posing so gracefully in front of the library. Yes, take her, sophs; (sundry sighs and sacking robs—maybe we better put a couple sniffles in there too) she wouldn't have us!

We hunted around this here office for two hours, (who's writing this; it WAS TOO two hours) but the only thing we could find that looked like an official seal was a postage stamp of ancient vintage, which was claimed immediately upon its appearance. And are we chagrined! ($4.82 word, special while they last).

Seeing as how we forgot how these gosh-whanged things end, and seeing as how we're getting too garrulous for the space allotted, (gosh, more big, big words, on'y free) we might just as well sign it.

Staff Smiles

A glorious sunny day and the annual ready for the press. No wonder the staff pauses for a few minutes to pose before two of our photographers, Burnell Carlin and Ed Dobrick. Fred Nyquist, Orville Becklund, and Russell Hollingsworth look relieved. Elaine Wentink and Jean Arnold listen to the witticisms of Bob Eckhardt and Phil Soucheray. The smiling sextets think it's funny too. Perhaps the flag raisers agree also.

Staff Grins

Caught by the staff photographers as they emerge from behind the bars are Harriet Noltimier, Jean Herschler, and Betty Erickson. Maxine Stubbs, Evelyn Gunn, Mildred Stier, and Margaret Morgan pose in dignified fashion. Who are the sheiks? Chester Gaskell, Norbert Willwerscheid, Gordon Kindy are three we identify. Our feature staff, Eion Dando, Maurice Brahl, Harry George, and John Miller display spring styles, while Louis Thomas campaigns for caps and gowns.

Now You Tell One!

I am a little model boy, who never likes to sleep,
And pass away the morning hours in slumber long and deep;
I do not like to turn me o'er and take another nap,
And disregard my papa's call, or hear house-maid's rap.
I love to leave my downy couch and rustle down to school,
I never cared for time enough to let my coffee cool—
In fact, I think things as they are, are in the proper state;
For my ideal of happiness, is school at half-past eight.
And eating with the family—why I never cared for that,
I like to swallow hastily my food, and grab my hat
And rush me out the two front doors and hurry down the street,
With a sense of utter emptiness from head way down to feet,
And then come in a little late, and then be sent to see
The fear-inspiring principal—how he will jump on me:
All this I like—could I but choose, I'd wish no happier state
Than Heaven with a high school that begins at half-past eight.

High School Characters

THE SENIOR GIRL

She has two topics of conversation—boys and men.
She goes to two movies a week and spends the rest of the time trying to imitate the leading lady.
She has a boy's picture framed on her dresser and sometimes she knows who he is.
Her most humiliating experience was the time she was heard to ask, "What's the Se-Lex?"
Her contempt for the boy who doesn't dance is almost equal to her feeling toward the youth without a car.

THE SENIOR BOY

He studies seldom but when he does it is behind locked doors while his neck burns with shame.
He thinks anyone over twenty is ancient and not fit for life.
He is not sure about what he will do after leaving school but has visions of himself at a massive desk surrounded by dictaphones and blond girls.
He is a little suspicious about girls who play basketball.
He spends much time in furthering what he hopes is his line.
He has heard that there are girls at Central who don't belong to sororities.

Household Recipes

IDEAL DIVINITY

Take one pleasant spring day, one piece of masculinity (large or small) and a pleasing portion of some high school blond, mixing well. Add a few feminine laughs, one pair of innocent eyes, and a pair of puckered lips. Serve frequently.

CENTRAL PASTRY

Gather all the low-down tales in a small hole and cover with a air of gossip. Mix Mary Lund and Jane Loevinger in debate. Take equal parts of Art Crawford and Bobby McClure for pep and Harry George for spice and stir with much laughter. Saturate with scandal and serve in front hall.

FACULTY SAUSAGE

One math theorem.
One Latin tale from Virgil.
A bit Chaucer and some Milton.
Three pounds of direct sarcasm or some inane advice.
One piece of A. G.'s mind.
Run through faculty meeting for two hours and sell by the yard.

Willie's Treasure

When Willie takes his sheep-skin home
From Education's hall,
Mother says she'll have it framed
To hang upon the wall.
Then Willie desperate effort makes
To stop such base outrage,
And tells her how to use the thing
In manner coy and sage,
"A dandy handbag for you, dear;
How lovely it will look—
A mat to set your flower pot on;
A cover for your book.
Some day when money's all tied up,
And you need a bite or sip,
Fetch this thing out and maybe you
Can pass it on for scrip:
And if depression hits us dire,
And we have no fuel to burn,
Just take this out to light the fire;
You'll see it serves a turn."

An Afterthought

It being too late to revise our copy, the Cehisean staff, faculty advisers included, hereby humbly apologize (and salve their consciences) for the "cruel injustices" done in "verse" in the album section to the oh-so-inestimable attributes (blushingly brought to our attention) of some of our graduates. We are forced to admit having inadvertently slighted your scintillating personalities, profound intellects, beauteous beings, &c. ad infinitum, and stuff, viz. junk.

But poor recompense can we offer Barbara Boeringer, George Steinfield, and John Miller, chief among the persecuted legions; accept the following specially adapted verses in substitution.

Now, how would you have liked this, Barbara;

The guiding light of all is she;
Look up! Look up! both you and me—
Wisdom, Charm, Sagacity!

And you, George;

Wisdom, Charm, Sagacity!
The guiding light of all is he;
Look up! Look up! both you and me!

And you, John;

Look up! Look up! both you and me—
Wisdom, Charm, Sagacity!
The guiding light of all is he!

AND SO ON DOWN THE LIST

Ever'body satisfied?—Ed. et al

A Grueling Day with the Cehisean Staff or Secrets Exposed

"George, that Storey must be in today." On the Brink of waxing Crosse, the editor thus Warns one toiling member of the staff.

"I will not Hedge; I will confess (give me the Gates but prevent a Brahl) the Storey is not Reddy." So saying George Burrows deep into his pocket for a Penne with which to write his resignation but pulls out only a handful of Nichols, for in spite of the depression, he is not short of Silver.

The editor although less Stirn, Withers our Hero with a glance but says condescendingly, "Wright it within two Weeks. You'd even make Doris Hagensick."

In a moment Earle, another staff member, Brings from the Hall a paper covered with Marks. 'Tis his assignment. "I will Popp around this door and Hyde while the editor Reads it," he says.

In a flurry of excitement the Editor Barks to the hiding lad, "I mean to give you Justus and a square Diehl, but you give me a Paine. You'd make a better Priest swear. This is Ritt simply terrible. Why it's even Fowler than I thought you'd Wright. Not that it matters though," he continued, "for you May Carey yourself right out of here even if it Hertz, and we won't be any Bleeker. There's a couple of Dames 'round that are all Reddy to Handin some really good material for a change."

At this Point Lilly Le Blond, Stiers his way up to the editor and gives him a pack of neatly typed copy. "Ah," he smiles at her (whispering to himself 'Ain't she the Katz') "this is Devine."

Look at Lilygren!

The Feature Editor's Lament

When I fear this book may yet go to press
Before my pen has scandalized the throng
Who daily by their actions do profess
A wish to be admitted, right or wrong,
To this attractive section of our book,
When I behold some sap who will escape
Because his actions cannot well be writ
In words the minds of Centralites can shape
To add to his good character one whit,
Or help us his misdeeds to overlook,
And when I feel as those before me felt
The danger that awaits its first debut
In this wide world—I stand aghast—and think!
My trunk is packed—my ticket bought—

Adieu—

IDEAS like airships, come towards us out of the haze Modern airports have every facility for the convenience of airmen and their crafts. Similarly, we have every modern equipment and years of engraving experience to bring into concrete form the ideas of our hundreds of clients who publish school and college annuals.

Developing a theme for such issues which will thrill whenever seen, and bring back happy memories in years to come, calls for understanding, and a wide range of experience You will find that sort of understanding and experience, as well as unsurpassed workmanship when you commit your publication to the
